

RALPH
Mc GILL'Bring On Competition'

At a time when many American industries are calling for a barrier of tariffs to protect a American industry, an eloquent and important voice says "No."

There is no more competitive market than lenses and cameras. It is as fierce as that in textiles. Yet, the eloquent voice of Charles J. Percy of Bell and Howell says, in effect, "Bring on the competition."

Mr. Percy was chairman of the Republican convention platform committee. He properly may be classified as an exponent of modern Republicanism. He believes that the tremendous productive capacity of this country should be used—not restricted. In a recent article (THINK), he laid down this thesis:

"Why should we refuse to trade with the free world—and tariff and customs barriers are in practice a refusal—when trade serves our own self-interest? Ultimately, this refusal would isolate us from the free world and the friendship of free nations, as it would surely aid the cause of communism."

"And why, again, are there cries of protest when someone suggests a reciprocal lowering of trade barriers? . . . The American consumer can see no reason why he should be forbidden to buy imports because they compete with the products of American manufacturers, or why, if he buys an imported product, he should pay a premium in the form of a tariff."

No Comfort

This bold, seldom heard statement will cause some of those on the American industrial horizon to wince and cry aloud. But Charles Percy gives them no comfort. His own belief in free competition is not a theory, but one born of a severe test.

Just before the Second World War, his company decided to enter the high-priced 35 mm still camera field. It could not be mass produced because it required many hand operations.

In competition with foreign manufacturers, his company lost one and a quarter million dollars. The camera was withdrawn. He and his board asked: "Shall national interests be subordinate to special interests?"

The answer was No.

Their thinking was interesting, and significant.

Mr. Percy and his staff knew that if they competed in handcraft methods they could not meet foreign labor rates. The true criterion, they determined, was not dollars or cents per hour of labor, but rather total labor costs per unit produced. In mapping a future program, the staff assessed an ever-increasing hourly rate.

New Methods

This cost, plus foreign competition, forced a search to find new and better methods. The company did it. A camera which sold before the Second World War for $49.95 when the hourly wage averaged 40 cents, now sells at $47.95 when the wage rate is five times as much.

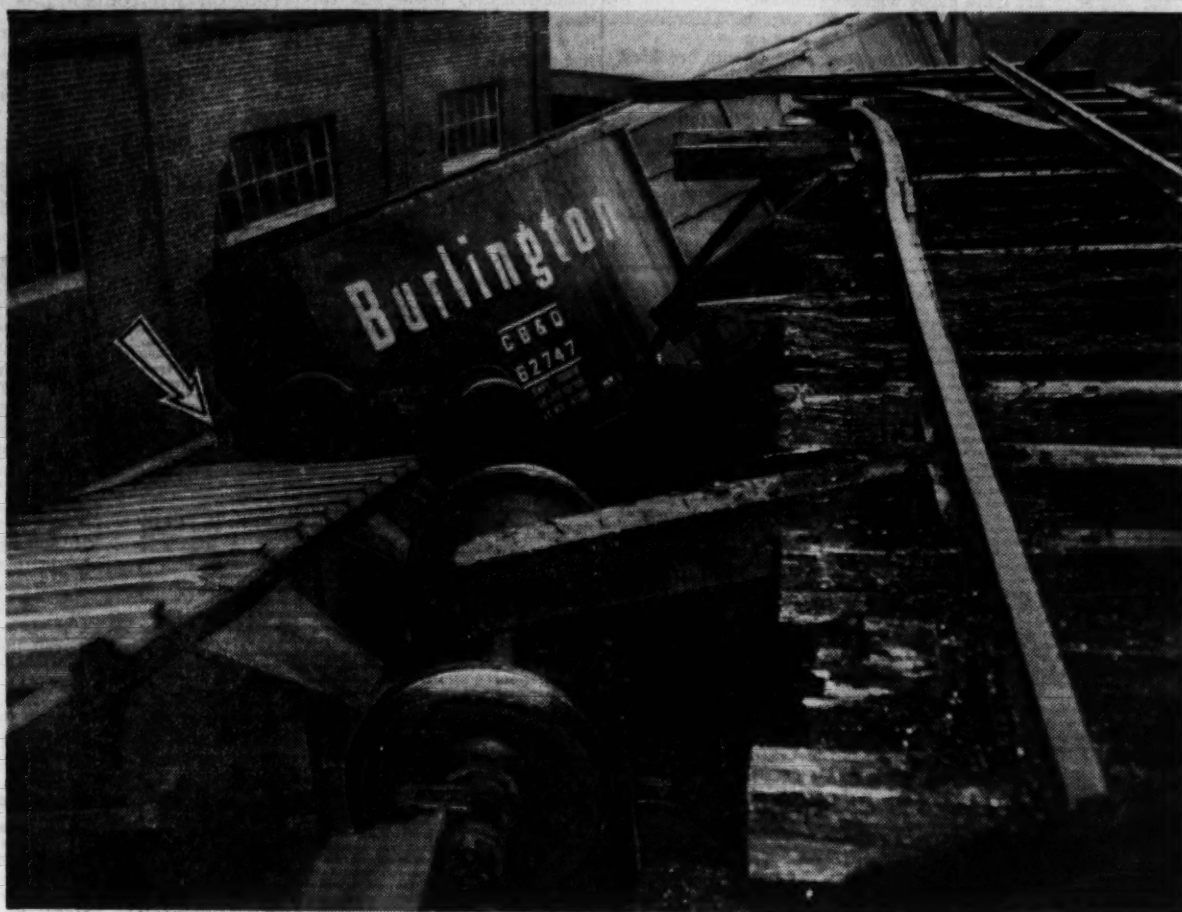

With labor costs the most important factor in the company's cost structure, the company successfully is competing with foreign manufacturers. This comes chiefly from Germany, Japan, England, Switzerland, Austria and Belgium.

It is astonishing to learn the Percy company exports lenses. The value of a lens is almost entirely in its workmanship. In a lens selling for $87, the value of the glass and metal is only 43 cents. The remaining cost represents labor. Yet, by developing techniques, made necessary by competition, the company reversed the lens trade and exports.

Foreign competition will increase.

The genius of America is "know-how"—ingenuity and imagination. Our industry, Mr. Percy says, did not become great by being sheltered. Huge expenditures for research and development, new and imaginative ideas in manufacturing and merchandising will, he believes, keep American industry vigorous.

There will be dissent. But his argument is positive, not negative.

RAIL CARS TUMBLE OFF SIDING, CRUSH WATERWORKS BUILDINGS

Water Unit

By FRANK WELLS

Seven railroad cars got away from trainmen early Sunday morning, rolled three-quarters of a mile down a track and plunged into the side of the Chattahoochee River Pumping Station of Atlanta Water Works.

Three of the cars stayed on the spur track used to deliver coal to the pumping station. One car loaded with bauxite rammed a hole in the side of the boiler house, causing damage estimated by Waterworks Supt. Paul T. Weir at "somewhere around $10,000 or $15,000."

W. T. Dudley, division superintendent of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad, said Sunday afternoon he hadn't found out yet how the cars got away. "We are trying to figure out some way to get that bauxite car out of the boiler room," Dudley said.

CABOOSE DEMOLISHED
In addition to the boiler room damage, one of the runaway cars damaged a small equipment building some 30 or 40 feet from the end of the track. The runaway occurred about 3:30 a.m.

First car to jump the track was the caboose of the train from which the cars became uncoupled. It was demolished. Two cars loaded with bauxite and one loaded with general merchandise ran off the end of the spur and one bauxite-loaded car knocked a hole in the side of the boiler room.

John Barber, who was on duty at the time at the boiler house, said the crashing wall came down within 25 feet of him. The crash severed a six-inch gas line and fire broke out. Barber immediately shut off the gas and the fire did no damage.

Weir said the damage, although great, could have been much worse. "There is a steam line with 200 pounds of pressure

65 Are Killed in Algeria
In Moslem 'Holy War'

ALGIERS (UPI)—A human wave of thousands of Moslems rioted and rampaged through European districts Sunday screaming for a "holy war" and clashing with French settlers and soldiers in bloody shootings that left scores dead and hundreds wounded.

Officials announced at least 65 persons dead, most of them Moslems. Some were Europeans. Authorities at one hospital in Algiers reported 300 persons "gravely" wounded. Other estimates of Moslem and French wounded ran as high as 350.

At least five Europeans were among the dead. Two were reported to have had their throats slit by Moslems, and French were numbered among the four killed and four wounded when Moslem raiders tossed a grenade into a cafe in the interior town of Tépaza. A policeman also was killed in the rioting that started three days ago on the arrival of President Charles de Gaulle in Algeria.

Censorship was clamped on press dispatches by cable and teletype but not on telephone dispatches. The instructions to the censors forbade any indication that the death toll might be greater than the official figure. The censors were ordered to block all political commentary on the event.

It was a bloody Sunday in Algiers, Oran and Constantine, the biggest cities, as Moslems fought French settlers, police and tough paratroopers in the worst outbreak of street fighting in the 130 years of French rule in Algeria.

BREAK UP MARCH

Paratroopers formed a 19th Century style infantry square and opened fire near government buildings to break up a Moslem attempt to march on the main European sector.

Rioting went on into the evening in Algiers after daylong clashes. The situation was less serious in Constantine. In Oran, Moslems burned European houses and cars in the streets.

When the rioting died down, survivors dragged Moslem wounded to the Algiers Casbah. Bodies lay on the street where they fell.

PRESS CASUALTIES

Among the injured in Oran were UPI correspondent Michel Lavite and two other newsmen who were caught in the blast when Moslems hurled back a grenade thrown by security guards.

French authorities said soldiers in Algiers fired "only exceptionally, when they themselves were fired on by demonstrators."

This was the first mention that the Moslems might be using firearms. Earlier reports said they had been using homemade grenades and rocks, iron bars and other implements.

The attack by the paratroopers appeared to have broken the back

Mother Wins Diaper Trade
At Kennedys' Florida Home

By FRANCES LEWINE

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—A vivacious, sun-tanned mother of three drives the big, white truck that delivers John F. Kennedy Jr.'s diapers.

And, if it hadn't been for Marjorie Griffiths' maternal and business instincts, the famous son of the President-elect might have found some of the necessities of life missing when he arrived here Friday night.

Mrs. Griffiths, whose distinctive diaper delivery truck isn't hard to spot in the exclusive Palm Beach oceanfront area, says she figured she ought to treat the Kennedys just like any other family with a baby.

So, she stopped by last Tuesday to ask if she could add the new household to her route of 200.

It was the first time she ever talked business with a Secret Service agent, and, it turned out, nobody in the Kennedy entourage had yet made any arrangements for baby John's diaper needs.

Mrs. Griffiths, 38, who was a U. S. Air Force parachute rigger before she switched to diapers, beat out her four competitors in the field and walked off with the contract for 140 baby diapers weekly for the next eight weeks.

And, she apparently reminded the Secret Service agent that he had some baby problems of his own, with his wife and new child living here while he is on duty with the Kennedys. He added his own baby's name to Mrs. Griffiths list along with John F. Jr.

The firm she works for employs only women to drive its fleet of some 25 diaper delivery trucks serving southern Florida.

Mrs. Griffiths is the wife of a West Palm Beach salesman, who just happens to have the same first name as Sen. John F. Kennedy. She has three children, Evelyn, 15; Fletcher, 13; and John Jr., 9.

Avoid Fight on Filibuster,
Push Bills, Mansfield Urges

By JACK RELL

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana called on Democratic liberals Sunday to sidetrack attacks on the Senate filibuster rule. He said such attacks might stymie the Kennedy legislative program.

Mansfield, expected to become Senate Democratic leader, said efforts to make it easier to cut off extended talk against civil rights measures could disrupt party unity needed to put over the new president's program.

"We ought to face up to the realities of the situation and recognize that the Democratic president will have a program he will want to put through," Mansfield said.

impossible to pass any except what they regard as watered-down civil rights measures.

Southern Democrats who strenuously oppose party platform bearing proposals in this field can be expected to filibuster any rules change proposal. Stirred by such a fight, they also might retaliate by opposing some other Kennedy measures.

Sen. Clinton P. Anderson, D-N.M., who has taken the lead in past efforts to change the rule, predicted in a separate interview that the liberals will decide to try again in January.

Snow Dumps Fury on East In Ice's Wake

By United Press International

A giant snow, sleet and rain storm, seemingly gathering strength after a marathon journey out of the Southwest, raced across the Midwest Sunday to unleash its fury on the East.

The first real snows of the season clogged many sections of the Eastern Seaboard, including the New York City and Washington, D.C., metropolitan areas.

Heavy snow warnings were issued as far north as Boston as the storm rolled into the Atlantic Coast states, preceded by sleet and freezing rain which glazed highways and streets with a treacherous sheet of ice.

DEATH TOLL 34

Rashes of fender-bending traffic crackups cropped out throughout the East as the snow snarled traffic in the major cities. In New York City motorists crept along at a snail's pace on streets reported as slick as glass, while in Washington stalled automobiles choked many thoroughfares.

At least 34 deaths were blamed on the weather. Seven of the deaths occurred in New England in fires attributed to the return of a siege of cold weather temperatures to the area.

The storm dumped up to five inches in its swing through the Midwest. But with the full strength of the storm beginning to slam into the East, weathermen revised snow forecasts, upping snowfall in the Washington area by four inches, with accumulations of up to 10 inches expected over-all.

MID-INDIANA BLANKETED

Three to five inches of snow blanketed the central section of Indiana, with the capital of Hoosierland — Indianapolis — already under two or three inches of snow. Freezing rain iced roads in the southern section of Indiana and, although all roads were opening, driving was a nightmarish affair.

The biggest snowfall of the season dropped on Columbus and southern Ohio.

The midwest invasion of the storm followed heavy snow warnings which were posted over the central states snow belt after the storm had powered through Arkansas, Kansas and Missouri, generally dumping three to six inches of snow.

RAIN IN SOUTH

South of the storm center, the precipitation generally was rain from the central Gulf states into the South Atlantic region. Moderate to heavy rains battered Tennessee and South Carolina.

The eastern advance preview of winter also included bone-chilling temperatures in the northeast, with Buffalo, N.Y., reporting a reading of six degrees below zero Sunday, a record low for the date, weathermen said.

But Colden, N.Y., about 25 miles south of Buffalo, observed a reading of 17 below, the Weather Bureau added.

Other rigorous temperatures included Newport, Vt., 14 below, and Binghamton, N.Y., 8 below. A few zero to minus five-degree readings were also noted in the upper Mississippi Valley early Sunday.

Mary Works, Mate Keeps House, And Everybody Seems Better Off

BROMSGROVE, England (AP)—The Wards have decided there's no law which says the family breadwinner has to wear the pants.

So Mary Ward, 34, has got a job teaching school at 16 pounds—$44.80 a week and Walter Ward, 40, has quit his tractor-driving job at nine pounds—$25.20—to stay home, take care of the children, do the dusting, the shopping and the cooking.

And it works.

BOTH LIKE ARRANGEMENT

"I don't mind admitting she can earn more than I can," Walter told reporters Sunday. Mary was satisfied with the arrangement, too.

"He's a better cook than I am," she said proudly of her ex-army mess sergeant husband.

The Wards say their family budget is much better off and they claim their children—David, 9, Rosemary, 7, Peter, 2, and Tony, 15 months—are quite happy with the situation.

DAY STARTS AT 7:30

Walter's day now starts at 7:30 with breakfast for the family. Mary and the two eldest children go to school at 8:10. Walter, having learned in the army, does his shopping in bulk and then gets on to dusting and cleaning. At 5 p.m. he has dinner ready for the returning breadwinner.

"Wondered before I started what Mary used to do all day," he said. "Now I know, I scarcely have time to sit down for a cigarette."

Reds Warn Britain On Polaris Base

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union told Britain Sunday night the American Polaris submarine base in Scotland would get the same treatment—in the event of "an incident"—as German U-boat bases got during World War II.

A Tass statement, based on what was called opinions held by Soviet official circles, said British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan believes that if the submarines create an incident while outside British territorial waters, a reply blow would be struck only at the submarine, not at the base.

"But," the statement added, "there is quite another opinion in the Soviet Union, even if the British government has a differing opinion."

Tass recalled that during the second world war the British inflicted blows on German submarine pens and bases.

Sunning Kennedy Phones on Cabinet

By W. H. LAWRENCE
(Copyright 1960, The New York Times Co.)

PALM BEACH, Fla.—President-elect John F. Kennedy relaxed in the warm Florida sunshine Sunday before heading back to snowbound Washington and a series of major cabinet appointments—scheduled early this week.

His relaxation could not be totally complete because he also carried on some business by long distance telephone, consulting with key advisers before announcing final appointments.

Kennedy kept his own counsel, but speculation continued that he would be ready — perhaps by Tuesday — to name the "big three" cabinet members, the secretaries of state, defense and treasury.

BALMY DAY

With heavy snow falling in Washington, the senator decided to get another full day in Florida before returning to the nation's capital.

Sunday he had no official callers. Without other members of his family, he attended a 10 a.m. mass at St. Edward's Catholic Church in Palm Beach, lunching at home, and then played golf in the afternoon with some personal friends at the Palm Beach Country Club.

Unofficial but presumably well-informed cabinet speculation continued with little change in the ratings of prospective appointees.

David K. E. Bruce, career diplomat, Den Rusk of the Rockefeller Foundation, and McGeorge Bundy, Harvard University dean, were rated the three front-runners for secretary of state, with Bruce currently being the edge.

McNAMARA FAVORED

Most sources close to Kennedy thought that Robert S. McNamara, new president of the Ford Motor Company, was the likeliest choice for secretary of defense. Douglas Dillon, a Republican and the present under secretary of state, was prominently mentioned for secretary of the treasury, but intimates of Kennedy said that others still are in the running for this job.

Once back in Washington, Kennedy probably will reach a final decision this week about the governmental role to be played by his younger brother, Robert F. Kennedy, who has been offered appointment as attorney general.

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—The fourth week of integrated classes began Sunday with a harassed minister vowing to love the hecklers who have threatened "to get" him.

Satellite's Tissue Sped To Experts

SUNNYVALE, Calif. (AP)—A prized cargo of living human tissue samples, which was carried 48 times around the earth in a space satellite, was being rushed Sunday to scientists seeking answers to space radiation hazards.

The payload capsule of Discoverer XVIII was plucked from the air over the Pacific east of Hawaii Saturday by Air Force Capt. Gene Jones in his second personal catch of a space research package.

Promptly loaded on an Air Force transport plane, the capsule was flown from Honolulu to California. The slender aluminum tube containing test tissue samples was removed from the cargo capsule Sunday at Lockheed Missile and Space Division's headquarters here.

The test samples will be rushed on to the Air Force School of Aviation Medicine at San Antonio, Tex., where scientists will measure the radiation effects on samples of bone marrow, eyelid tissue, gamma globulin, and cancer cells carried on the Discoverer XVIII flight.

"It's becoming almost a regular operation," said Capt. Jones, 39, of Walla Walla, Wash., after landing his capsule-fielding C119 Flying Boxcar at Hickman.

Soviet Gift 'Copter Fails; Castro Safe

HAVANA (UPI)—Premier Fidel Castro was disclosed Sunday to have narrowly escaped injury when the engine of his Russian helicopter conked out while he was inspecting troop operations against an armed uprising on two fronts in Las Villas Province.

Castro's disabled helicopter floated down safely near Manacas as the Premier returned from an aerial inspection of the Corrallo area.

The engine of the helicopter, a gift to Castro from Soviet Deputy Premier Anastas Mikoyan, had stopped in mid-flight.

Castro's close call capped a weekend that included these other rapid-fire developments:

1. Six Cubans were executed by firing squads Saturday night—four of them for trying to hijack an airliner in flight with the aim of fleeing to the United States and two for the killing of Las Villas militia commander Maj. Manuel Fajardo, Castro's personal physician.

CHURCH BOMBED

2. A bomb exploded Sunday morning in a vestibule of the Church of La Milagrosa de Don Bosco here during morning mass attended by some 200 worshippers. There were no casualties but the floor and walls were ripped.

3. Castro troops pressed operations aimed at stamping out a small rebel force operating on the north central coast near Corrallo.

Monday in Pinar del Rio, a revolutionary tribunal was expected to hand down a verdict on former army Capt. Clodomiro Miranda and six of his followers who rebelled against the Castro regime. The death penalty has been asked who claimed it was the work of the seven.

Verdict in Illinois, Texas 2 Years Off, Morton Says

By ROBERT BARKDOLL

WASHINGTON (UPI)—GOP National Chairman Thruston B. Morton said Sunday it will be nearly two years before the nation definitely knows whether Illinois and Texas voted Republican rather than Democratic in the presidential election.

By then, he said, President-elect John F. Kennedy would long have been inaugurated and there would be no chance of changing the election result.

His claim of a year and a half to two years was based on the fact that Republicans in Illinois and Texas are planning to go to court with their charges of election irregularities.

He said it would be that long before any definite action can be taken on the GOP claims that electoral votes of the two states were wrongly given to Kennedy.

Interviewed on ABC-TV's Issues and Answers, Morton said he would not concede the election to Kennedy until the electoral votes are officially counted on Dec. 19.

He said this was because there was always a possibility that Illinois' 27 electoral votes might be shifted to Vice President Richard M. Nixon between now and Dec. 19, and then some unpledged Southern electors might vote for the GOP candidate.

But he described as "highly problematical and doubtful" the possibility that the Southerners might do this.

Still, he said there was always a mathematical possibility that Nixon might be elected, although he said the chances were one in 10,000.

"As a realist, I don't think there is a chance," he said.

Morton added, however, that he had been told by Republican lawyers that if a recount were held in Chicago's Cook County, Illinois would go to Nixon.

He denied that Republicans were demanding a recount because of "sour grapes" or the fact that they were poor losers. The object, he said, was "sanctity of ballots," and to make sure that polls would be closely watched in succeeding elections.

Public Spirit
Keys Award
For Doctors

By BARBARA MILZ

Who is Atlanta's most public-spirited physician?

Members of the Fulton County Medical Society are looking for him. They want to name this doctor recipient of the annual Aven Citizenship Award for 1960.

Atlantans are invited to nominate their selection of candidates for this award. To win, the doctor must be judged outstanding for his individual contributions outside the field of medicine.

The award is for contributions in welfare, education, civic leadership, health, the arts, and other such programs.

PANEL TO SELECT WINNER

From the nominations, a panel of three judges will select the Fulton County Medical Society member to receive the award.

The award was established in 1953 by Dr. and Mrs. Carl C. Aven to promote increased interest and participation among members of the Fulton County Medical Society in civic affairs.

Dr. and Mrs. Aven provided funds for a large silver cup as the annual award. The winner keeps the cup for a year, then passes it along to his successor. Each winner retains a small replica of the trophy.

PRESENTED AT BANQUET

Nominations may be sent to: Aven Citizenship Awards Committee, c/o Dr. J. D. Martin Jr., president, FCMS, 875 W. Peachtree St., N.E., Atlanta.

Former winners of the Aven Citizenship award include:

1954: Dr. Edgar M. Dunstan for his work in civil defense, setting up and directing the first medical branch of civil defense in Atlanta and Georgia and serving in this field on a national level.

1955: Dr. Rives Chalmers, Atlanta psychiatrist, for his work and leadership in mental health.

1956: Dr. R. A. Bartholomew for service in civil defense and disease control.

1958: Dr. Irving L. Greenberg for his work in civic affairs and community leadership.

Will Counties Grab Reappraisal Offer?

The story last week from Waycross saying that more than four million dollars worth of property which had been escaping taxes had been added to the tax digest is an experience common to communities which have undertaken reappraisal programs.

It provides, in fact, one of the strongest arguments for revaluation and equalization.

Reappraisal does not necessarily mean higher taxes. If all property not being taxed is added to the digest, it could mean the opposite. And a realistic revaluation can lower millage rates while producing the same amount of revenue. Revaluation, too, is a method of increasing bonding capacities for capital improvements.

A major reason for the decline of local government in Georgia and one reason for the decline of many communities can be found in the abdication of responsibility at the local level. This, of course, is evident most in the ridiculous evaluation of property in the majority of counties.

Looking to the state to take over the burden of financing more and more local government functions can only weaken local government itself. At the same time it dilutes the state's efforts and leads to greater centralization of power in state government. It also accelerates the movement of people to urban areas.

The Bolton committee's proposal that the state lend money to counties desiring to undertake reappraisals and revaluation has been endorsed by Gov. Vandiver. It provides for a start. We dare say that those counties which avail themselves of such an opportunity will be the leaders of tomorrow.

State handouts cannot save local governments and local economies. The initiative and enterprise to do those jobs must come from local people, acting responsibly.

Will the Slum Problem Stay in the Back Seat?

It is too bad that every American could not have heard Charles Palmer's recent speech to the Little Rock Housing Authority.

Atlanta Palmer was this country's first real slum fighter and remains one of its most authoritative. When he tells of slums' toll—in human misery, ugliness and dollars—he knows what he's talking about.

One point he made needs to be given special stress. Discussing the fact that governments have ignored slum problems, Palmer said:

"The slum problem has taken a back seat too long. With a couple of million less farmers than slumites, our federal expenditures per farm family is $3,000 per year against $84 per slum family."

"Why haven't we, the richest people in the world, got on better with the job? The cost will be only a fraction of our federal expenditure per farm family. And it will come back many fold in tax savings."

Buttermilk Bottom is a burden to all Georgians, whether they live in Atlanta or in a south Georgia hamlet. Until we realize that we are going to go on hurting ourselves.

Let's Drop Some More Into Those Kettles Here

Those Salvation Army Lassies, their tinkling bells and their kettles are an established part of the Christmas scene in Atlanta.

Where do those coins and the all-too-seldom folding money you drop into those kettles go?

Well, the Salvation Army is striving to distribute more than 5,000 toys and 2,000 dolls dressed by various organizations, companies and individuals to underprivileged children.

In cooperation with the Board of Education and grade school principals, certificates for more than 600 pairs of new shoes have been processed.

Then there is the traditional Christmas dinner itself. The Salvation Army center prepares steaming meals for the homeless and hungry. In addition to those who eat there, the workers plan to make it possible for many families to have dinners in their own homes.

The Salvation Army, by careful planning, believes it can handle the complete job for $53,000. But donations are lagging behind schedule. A warm-hearted community such as Atlanta should lose no time in rectifying the situation inasmuch as well over 1,000 applications for Christmas aid already have been received.

What you drop into the Kettle and how you respond to a letter appeal will determine whether the campaign brings joy to many people or leaves a goodly number of them empty handed and lonely come Christmas.

Usual Onslaught Aimed At Crows on Peachtree

Atlanta "farmers" and their youngsters will be able to get their work-calls hands on just as many firecrackers as ever this Christmas season. So will their brother farmers throughout Georgia.

Of course, state law prohibits sale and use of fireworks for anything except agricultural purposes and special displays in Georgia.

But it seems that everyone in the state farms, especially during certain seasons of the year, and the shooting of firecrackers is very essential in tilling the soil and raising of livestock in thickly populated urban areas as well as everywhere else in Georgia.

Wholesalers realize this. They are prepared to flood the Atlanta market with thousands of dollars worth of firecrackers, according to Municipal Judge James E. Webb. It is unlawful to sell or shoot them in Atlanta but operators have a way of throwing up makeshift stands beyond the city limits and selling to all comers.

The state law may have been well-intended but it has loopholes big enough to drive a fleet of bulldozers through. The General Assembly should close them before more hands are mangled and eyes are damaged.

Meanwhile, crows had best beware. "Farmers" young and old will, as usual, stock up on firecrackers this Christmas in order to scare you away from every field in Georgia, including those on Peachtree Street.

Fantasy and the Facts Are Sometimes Similar

If 3,942,935 Georgians lived in eight counties . . . if 60 lived, (two each) in 30 counties . . . if just one person lived in each of the remaining 121 counties . . . the state constitution would still provide that the eight biggest counties have only three representatives each in the legislature.

The 30 counties with two residents would have two representatives and the 121 counties with one resident would each have one representative.

One hundred eighty-one Georgians would have 181 votes in the legislature. The remaining 3,942,935 would have 24 votes.

This is fantasy, of course. This is fact: Fulton's 556,326 residents have three votes and Echols' 1,876 have one vote.

Cheatham Hill Shows What People Can Do

Congratulations to Cheatham Hill community in Cobb County which has won this year's top award in the annual North Georgia Rural Community Development contest. And it's a "well done" to the runners-up and all the 142 communities which participated in this 14th contest sponsored by the Farmers Club of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce.

The contests each year are becoming better and more popular. Participating communities are finding that projects undertaken provide a spur for continued effort in ensuing years. The $5,000 in prizes is more than justified in the results. Cheatham Hill, like communities all over the land, has found that the way to improvement is sustained and cooperative effort. This can be done through adopting community goals and the working together of people to achieve them.

Increased Tax Digests Reflect Steady Growth

Continued rises in the city's and county's tax digests indicating there will be no general tax increases next year is welcomed news. They show a healthy community growth rate enabling a steady if not spectacular improvement in services and capital investments.

City Comptroller Earl Landers reports revenues for this year approximating $5,500,000 more than anticipated. Since city government is prohibited from operating under deficit financing, budget planning is based upon anticipated revenues. Planning for 1961, for instance, will be based on a figure of 94 per cent of this year's receipts. This is conservative budget planning made necessary by the city's sound fiscal policies.

But it is pleasant news that county and city governments anticipate no serious financial problems in the next year.

Let's Not Pave Paths to Office

The owner of every bumpsprung automobile in Georgia will agree the state needs to make a great leap forward in highway repair. Before springing into the air, however, let us be sure where we are going to land.

Current talk about a "75 to $100 million bond issue" makes a matter of $25 million sound easily optional. What, actually, is needed? With bond issues as with women, the first condition ought to be selection of a figure that is sound and economical, not simply one that is round and fat.

The people also need a guarantee that the money will go into potholes instead of Ratholes. The late Marvin Griffin administration showed how not to do it. While the main road network that serves everybody crumbled for want of maintenance, a pork barrel full of bond money evaporated in the process of slapping down new roads.

Inability to maintain the roads we already had did not worry that carefree crew. And as for maintaining all the new rural roads, Griffin told the counties that was their problem.

The people saw their millions invested with all the prudence of a small boy buying a gallon of ice cream and then leaving it in the hot sun to keep.

Griffin said he was getting the taxpayer out of the mud. He transferred him into the red. He left him acres of asphalt bought on credit without provision to protect the older road investment, much less the new. Somebody has to stop the music or the main highways of Georgia will go back to weeds while politicians buy new ones willy-nilly.

Gov. Vandiver has cleaned up a lot of the mess. But roads are still not being maintained. The bond issue is proposed as a remedy. Bond financing is not a good idea when the debt outlasts the purchase. Only if the highways are to be kept in good shape once bond money puts them in good shape can road maintenance be justified as a lasting purchase. The people need assurance of long-range intent.

The people need a formula laid down in advance for spending the bond money. It ought to be based on solid engineering data. The money must not be put up for political grabs and frittered away to pave a few personal paths to office.

County contracts have led to waste; the state ought to hold the reins on this spending. There is talk that the county-maintained rural roads ought to get some of this state maintenance money and this ought to be ruled out firmly. The state system needs to be repaired before the state starts playing generous uncle for county roads. Towns and cities also need advance guarantee that maintenance of state roads will not stop at their city limits.

We Show World Reunited Purpose

WASHINGTON — Words like "cooperation" and "helpfulness" as between a retiring administration of one party and an incoming administration of another party usually have meaning mainly in the dictionary. Usually, let's face it, they are amiable phonies. They are, however, genuine words with genuine significance now in the unfolding hiatus between the end of Eisenhower's tenure and the beginning of Kennedy's.

Not in the memory of the oldest inhabitants has an old president shown such practical kindness toward a newly chosen president. And not in memory has a president coming into power shown such proper deference to a president going out of power.

No administration will ever have come to office with a greater advance knowledge of national problems, or a better briefing on national posture in the world. Kennedy personally has been given long fill-ins of the most secret of all government information, that of the Central Intelligence Agency. His associates have been brought into useful consultation with Eisenhower government officials.

We are showing the world not simply the forms of national unity after a presidential contest. This time we are showing the substance, as well as the forms, of a reunion of national purpose.

Eisenhower came to office eight years ago—our last previous change in party control of the White House—in a partisan atmosphere so bitter that he snubbed the outgoing president, Harry Truman. This—and no matter which man was "to blame"—was anything but good for the country. And it looked for a time during our recent campaign that Eisenhower might find it a bit hard to treat with entire seriousness "that young man" who was the Democratic candidate for president.

But "that young man"—perhaps because he ran a responsible campaign, as, indeed, did his Republican adversary, Richard Nixon—is now treated at the Eisenhower White House with total seriousness and total goodwill.

Those who have seen the President of late can have no doubt of this: He wants in every way to help make the transition smooth and effective. "That young man" has turned out to be not such a bad fellow, after all.

And it is wholly within the bounds of possibility that Eisenhower, a generation senior to President-elect Kennedy, might accept one or more assignments, probably of a consultative nature, from the new Kennedy administration. The old President has made his record; and now shows no special regard for pride of place.

And the world's diplomats here are seeing with their own eyes that we have reached political maturity and are stronger rather than weaker in the aftermath of our presidential campaign.

The Frog Legs Were Still Good

WINDSOR, Ont.—I came back to this Canadian town today on a sort of sentimental journey. Years ago, when I was still in high school, a friend named Nelson Nix and I cranked up an old Ford and set out for Chicago to see the World's Fair. We drove day and night, stopping by the side of the road to sleep once in a while, for we didn't have much money, and we didn't intend to spend it on such fripperies as hotel rooms.

We saw the fair all right, keeping a close watch on our dimes and proudly bearing home a little souvenir for our mamas. Mine, I remember, was a little wooden based lamp with souvenirs of Chicago World's Fair on it and it still sits on a table at home, though the writing on the waxed paper shade is a little faded now by the years.

We were country boys, and careful of our money, staying out of the cooch shows and the other sinful places and concentrating mainly on the educational exhibits. So when we had finished seeing the fair, we had a few dollars left, above what we needed for gas and oil and hot dogs that would get us home. So we decided to splurge a little. We wanted to see a foreign country, and we knew by looking at the map, that once we got to Detroit, Canada was just across the river.

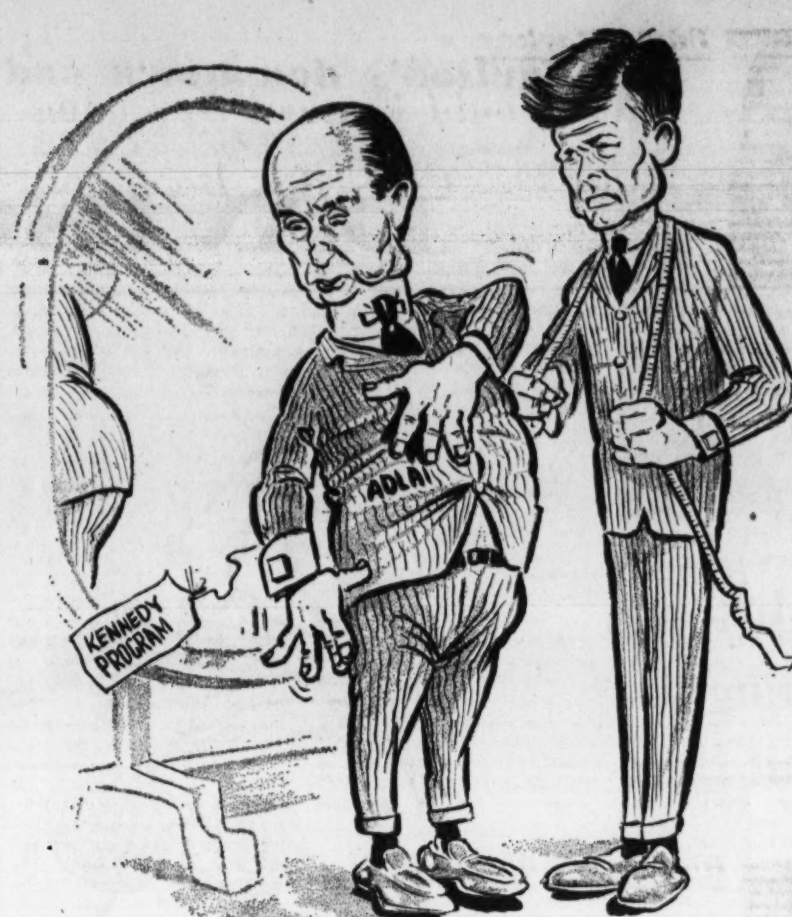

So we drove on to Detroit and across the river into Canada, at Windsor. And once we were on foreign soil a spirit of devilishness seized us. We went into a little restaurant and on the menu it said they had frog legs, and sandwiches made out of goose liver. And to two high school boys from Commerce this was a great wonder. So one of us ordered frog legs, and the other one took the goose liver. And the waitress asked us would we like some wine.

And we looked at each other and gulped and said sure. So she brought a little bottle of sauterne, which tasted like weak vinegar and we ate our frog legs and goose liver and drank the wine.

And never since have I felt so blasé and so sophisticated and such a man of the world. Which is why, I guess, I came back here today. Everything looked the same, but different, too, and I couldn't find the place, for sure. I did find a little restaurant down by the water. And it had frog legs, and they were fine. But when, out of sentiment, I asked for a glass of sauterne, the waitress looked at me as if I were out of my mind.

"No wine on the Sabbath," she said. "Not in Ontario." "Yes ma'am," I said, meekly, feeling like I was a 15-year-old high school boy from Georgia.

'Those People Having the Least to Fear Should Volunteer to Break the Deadlock'

Rome—Perhaps a different approach to the entire problem of integration in the South is now necessary. For some years the whole educational and social problem has been handed about by the professional politicians from the several sections of the country and the self-appointed newspaper, radio, and television experts. Therefore, since it is too late to call in the professional educators and social workers, we might try a new method of implementing the various court edicts which have been handed down. This would prevent the conflict which has occurred between Negroes and whites because of rabble rousing, planned agitation, and political expediency.

First, let's take the "sit-ins." If

The Constitution welcomes expressions of opinion from readers for publication in this column. All letters are subject to editing to conform to length, libel laws, grammar and good taste. Since space is limited, letters should be kept as short as possible.

the upper classes of whites would voluntarily take a lead in the integration movement, the ignorant and prejudiced might be shamed into a more democratic outlook. For instance, why not persuade the "sit-in" students to declare a moratorium until a more propitious season by inviting them to the private clubs, exclusive dining rooms, and special community and church halls.

Again, if the community and social leaders from the more influential classes should agree that token integration should begin in their neighborhoods, perhaps, the state government would permit such a step. The conflicts in Little Rock, Norfolk, New Orleans and other places took place because a cross section of people were involved. The more enlightened and democratic persons at the top of the social heap would not necessarily be intimidated by the radical politicians and racists if they agreed to accept a selected group of the better Negro pupils in their schools. Most of us know that the most lasting reforms in England, France, and America—as well as other countries—started with the upper and middle class peoples. Only when the proletariat was permitted to take over did chaos and violence ensue.

We have deplored the narrowness, the prejudice, and the rampant sectionalism with regard to the racial and political situation for a number of years. So, since it has been proven beyond a doubt that conflict will arise every time we try to mix the races indiscriminately, those who have the least to fear should be the first to volunteer to break the deadlock.

'Schools Didn't Fail,' She Answers Letter

Atlanta — In answer to "She Criticizes Calling them Illiterates," I wonder if she would really want her children to go to school with the type of children whose parents teach them openly to be intolerant. No, the schools have not failed in any way. They gave them the knowledge and put them on the right path, and if they go astray after they leave school, how can you put the blame on the schools? If she actually saw the demonstration of those mothers in New Orleans on television and how sick at my stomach it made me and ashamed of seeing a group of mothers turn-

The time has come in the United States, as indeed in Britain or in West Germany, for a new dose of adventure and imagination in coping with the mortal perils and high opportunities of the 20th century world, which is being transformed at the pace of a revolution by technical and social change. Mr. Kennedy, in the generalities of the hustings, has promised precisely that. Whether he can make good his promise, whether he will be allowed to do so, we will not know until he tries. But we can, from the heart, wish him well.

He Wants Georgians To Go to Australia

Athens—First, The Atlanta Constitution and other traitors in our midst have allied themselves with the Yankees, Negroes, power-mad politicians, Communists and greedy industrialists who hate the South and are trying to destroy it.

Second, since those few courageous Southerners who are actively trying to defend the South are such a minute minority, it is now apparent that our enemies are going to win. But I don't think any true Southerner can stomach the destruction of the South, the deplorable results of integration, or the establishment of a judicial oligarchy in the U.S. government.

Third, there is a foolproof way to escape all this. I'm talking about the move Stanley Yankus made to escape another kind of American tyranny. In short, I'm saying that we Southerners would be much better off living in Australia as free, dignified individuals than here under Yankee-Negro domination.

Only 5 States Forbid Candidates' Names

Lafayette — Because of the interest in Georgia presidential electoral law, I'd like to share some interesting facts about practices over the nation.

According to a congressional study of presidential election laws in all states, published April 15, 1960, since 1800 the people have controlled the presidential electors. There was massive revolt against the original system of having state legislatures appoint and instruct electors. Since that time only two electors have failed to vote the wish of the people: in 1820 one elector voted against Monroe because he wanted George Washington to be the only president elected unanimously, and in 1948 one of Tennessee's electors voted for Thurmond.

Furthermore, according to this survey:

Only five states forbid the names of presidential and vice presidential nominees to be put on the general election ballot. These are Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Illinois and Wyoming. Connecticut laws summarized did not cover this. South Carolina and Vermont permit the candidates' names but do not require them.

Forty-three states require that nominees' names be placed on ballot. Twenty-nine states do not even list electors on the ballot. A vote for nominees is considered to be a vote for the electors. Colorado, Florida, Hawaii, Indiana, Iowa, Montana, New York and Oregon bind the electors by law to support the nominees of the party under whose name they run.

Eddie BarkerWhy Would Cynical Newsmen Want This Copy Boy Back So?

The place of a copy boy on a paper is pure purgatory, and, on some sheets, the drop is deeper. It is pure hell. When Olan Morton, 21, checked into the city room fresh from the farm and Albertville, Ala., he had no way of knowing what was expected of him as he ran news copy, errands, and carried coffee for reporters and desk men. But the boy, trained to obey and graced with good manners, ran with the tide. Whatever he was asked to do, he did. And he did it quickly, quietly, with a wonderful drive that made you wonder what made for such motivation.

But then we should have seen it from the first.

Olan Morton was tested more thoroughly than most copy boys.

"Do you," he was asked, "want to see what work you would have to do? It may be too hard for you."

"I'd like to look," he said. He saw the newsroom in full swing. Reporters were typing stories and editors were pushing it to copy readers. Boys run this copy from a desk to a tube operated by vacuum; they must roll it, shove the copy into a tube, then shoot it straight to the composing room. They must cut paper from the teletype machines, assort the wire stories, and rush them to their proper places. And tiny teletype rolls must be clipped and clocked.

For a boy who runs, it is eight hours of steady arm, leg and head work.

Olan Morton watched. Every movement the copy boys made. Then he had his answer: "I can do it."

He was given the chance. And so it did.

The boy answered each call for "Copy." He ran for coffee. He was called on for cokes. "Tear the machine," someone would yell. Olan Morton was the first up to cut copy. Said Flash Niles, chief of the copy runners, "He wants to work." That's almost more than Flash can say for himself.

But it wasn't all work for the Alabama farm boy. During off minutes he would call girls he had met in Atlanta. You could see him sitting off by himself, smiling, liking what he heard on the line. To Jerry Sterling, another alert lad, Olan talked of high school. Sterling was not surprised when Morton showed him football formations. "Played the game two years," he said. Then he was up, moving like a trained athlete, to answer the call for "Copy."

But one night last week Olan Morton had an accident. He came to the tubes to clock copy, rushing it toward the composing room for the morning edition and he fell. His head hit a steel spike. It went in deeply, but, at first, the steel didn't stop the boy. He tumbled his copy. Then he fell to the floor.

Once revived, Morton made it back to his feet. He wanted to continue working. He wouldn't quit until he was carried from the newsroom and to a hospital. Newsmen called it a black night.

Why would veterans of this business, cited as cynical and unsympathetic, continue to worry about a copy boy, lowest form of life around a newspaper? Why would they want a boy back who does nothing but cut copy, roll it, and rush it toward a tube?

Because Olan Morton's courage has come through: He does all this without hands or arms.

Robert V. OzmentSource of Power Awaits Your Call

I have never seen a person who was sufficiently wise or strong enough to walk from the cradle to the grave without help. It does not matter how much wealth, wisdom or authority one may have, there are times when these are useless in guiding us safely through life.

In our family room there hangs a lovely clock. My wife winds it every eight days. As long as she remembers to wind the clock, it keeps perfect time. If it does not get the proper attention after eight days, it begins to run slow and eventually stops. Life is like that. The wheels of life begin to run slow and the springs need rewinding with some degree of regularity.

I talked to a man the other day who was facing a serious problem. I asked, "What have you done to try to solve this problem?"

"I have thought about it, discussed it with others and worried about it," he said. Frankly, the man had not taken many positive steps in finding the solution to his problem. He had thought about it but his wisdom was not sufficient. He had talked to others about it but they were not able to help him. Finally, he had worried about it. You will have about as much chance in solving a problem through worry as a little boy will have of hitting Mars by standing on the ground throwing rocks toward the sky.

It is easy to get lost in the world and the tragedy with so many people is that they are making no effort to find themselves. We must come to God if we wish to find ourselves.

There is a source of power available to each of us if we are willing to pray. No room in the house of life is so dark but what the light that comes through sincere prayer will shine in the way one should go.

I always ask God for advice when I have to make decisions. Whenever I follow the sensitive voice of God, He leads me down a path of noble living. God has never advised me to pursue a road that would either injure my soul or the soul of a brother. Real prayer is admission to God that our wisdom is not sufficient.

Prayer is also an attempt to revise life. When we pray, we are placing more areas of life under the sway and wisdom of God. We are entering a contract with God when we pray. Through prayer, we are making an honest effort to align our lives with the will of God. I frequently advise people whose lives are twisted with confusion and tangled with indecision to pray.

God knows more about life than we do and He will not only show the way, but from Him comes the strength to travel in the path of His will.

Celestine SibleyShe Left the Hospital Before
---Not Because of---Breakfast

The fellow who advised, "never explain, never apologize" may have had a sound idea for avoiding the perils of the defensive position but he wasn't talking to me. When I have been falsely accused I range from a Uriah Heepish eagerness to curry favor again to a frantic, militant determination to marshal forth the true facts and vindicate myself. Like that report the other day (brought to me by several dear friends) that I packed up and left a local hospital in a huff because I didn't like my breakfast... oh, me, suppose my sainted mother, Muv, heard that!

To Muv the biggest fool in all childhood literature, with the possible exception of Elsie Dinsmore who, she contended, was a whey-faced ninny without gumption enough to bell a buzzard, was the protagonist in "The Princess and the Pea." You remember the princess. The way she established her noble lineage was by being so tenderfleshed and delicately wrought that she was able to detect the presence of a pea under a monumental stack of featherbeds.

Muv snorted contemptuously at that story and bade me get it out of my head that people with "raising" royal or not, were picky about the accommodations, wherever they were. And if she heard that I made a scene about a mere breakfast... well, it's a big, fat lie, that's all I can say.

This is not to say that I would camp around the hospital — ANY hospital — waiting to get one more of their tasty meals before I checked out. (I haven't seen a hospital yet with a cuisine like that!) In fact, anybody would be a fool not to time his departure so as to miss a meal if he could — and I don't believe any hospital would consider that a breach of hospitality. After all, there are plenty of patients needing care and the ones coming in are a sight less interested in the quality of the cookery than those who are able to sit up and complain.

A nice docile, feverish or delirious patient isn't going to care if the broth is as tepid as a baby's bath water and comes in a soggy paper cup or a Haviland tureen. The healthy or the semi-healthy are the ones who haven't much to look forward to and pass the time dreaming of mealtime and all sorts of elegant and unlikely dishes the like of which few hospitals stock.

But there's a big difference between checking out of a hospital before a meal and checking out of a hospital because of a meal. I had my clothes on and my nightie and toothbrush packed before I clapped eyes on breakfast the day I ended my hospital sojourn. I looked at it before the pretty little nurse's aid took it away, just to see what I was missing, and then I rushed out to meet a friend who had invited me to a neighboring restaurant for blueberry pancakes.

I went happily and thankfully but if the doctors had decreed it I could have remained just as thankfully and almost as happily.

Bringing It Home on the Rim

Allen, Ross Hit Maddox Racial Plan

An Atlanta civic leader Sunday night termed Lester Maddox' plan for boycott of businesses hiring Negro employees as "ridiculous."

Ivan Allen Jr., who will become president of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce in January, said that he was speaking personally and not as a Chamber official.

NOT FOR MAJORITY

"Mr. Maddox doesn't in any way represent any majority of public opinion or public, business or civic leadership," Allen said. "Such a violent statement as he has made is no manner in which to reach a solution."

"The Negro students involved in the sit-ins don't necessarily represent a majority of the Negro population or the leaders of the Negro community," Allen asserted. "Such retaliatory measures as Mr. Maddox recommends are ridiculous."

PLAN SURVEY

Maddox, an Atlanta restaurant operator, stated Saturday that Georgians Unwilling to Surrender planned to survey the employment of Negroes by whites in the Atlanta area. He said that if Negroes continued their sit-ins, white employers would be asked to fire Negro employees and GUS would ask whites to boycott white employers of Negroes.

Joseph Ross, president of Davison's, Atlanta department store picketed by Negroes because the store closed its eating facilities after sit-ins, said: "Problems such as this are not solved by acts of retribution or a spirit of vindictiveness.

"Davison's will never use the device of reprisal as an instrument of personnel policy."

Negro Students March Downtown, Sing and Pray for Desegregation

Negro students marched and sang on downtown Atlanta streets Sunday and held a prayer meeting for integration.

In Macon, three Negro students from Atlanta were "detained" Sunday by police after they got service at the bus station cafeteria there. Four or five Negroes who tried the same thing in Atlanta's Greyhound Bus Station were not arrested, but the eating facility was closed, police said.

The Atlanta marchers, estimated to number between 1,000 and 2,000, first gathered in sunrise services in Atlanta University's Herndon stadium and stood in a chilling rain to pray for integration.

They then marched to Plaza Park to sing hymns and hear integration leader Lonnie King urge a continuance of an economic boycott against downtown Atlanta merchants operating segregated lunch counters. Police Capt. T. C. Marler told the group it could not gather without a permit, and the Negroes dispersed.

The Macon incident came when three Negro students—one boy and two girls—got off a Jacksonville-bound bus, stood in the serving line of the cafeteria in the white section of the bus terminal, were served food and sat down and ate it.

Police later arrived and took the three to the city police station. Chief L. B. McCallum later told reporters the incident occurred as a result of a "misunderstanding" and that the issue was closed.

No charges were made against the young Negroes—identified as Benjamin Brown, Betty Williamson and Norma Wilson. Brown is a student at Clark College and the girls are both seniors at Spelman College here.

The Atlanta march, described as orderly by police, brought many spectators to the downtown area. The march was announced Saturday by Rev. William Holmes Borders, chairman of the Student-Adult Liaison Committee, a lunch counter desegregation negotiating group.

Bonn-Soviet Trade May Hinge on Berlin

(Copyright 1960, The New York Times Co.)

BONN—The West German government was said Sunday to be prepared to let formal trade relations with the Soviet Union lapse unless the Soviets modify their opposition to the so-called Berlin Clause.

This clause would have West Berlin treated for trade purposes as part of West Germany.

Bonn has dropped its demand that the new trade agreement being negotiated here contain a written acknowledgment of this relationship between the isolated city and the federal republic.

But the Soviet negotiators have also indicated clearly that Moscow would object publicly to a unilateral oral declaration by West Germany. This is what Bonn did when the last three-year trade pact was signed at the end of 1957. The Soviets not only let it pass in silence but accepted West Berlin as part of West Germany in the trading that followed.

The first official word of Bonn's reaction to the new situation was given by Foreign Minister Heinrich von Brentano on Saturday at a private meeting with publishers and editors of Christian Democratic Union newspapers. The CDU is the governing party in West Germany.

Von Brentano told the group that the commercial side of the negotiations had been concluded satisfactorily but that the Soviet negotiators had insisted that they were not authorized to discuss "political questions."

over the Berlin issue, Von Brentano said. The old pact, he added, The new agreement will not be signed pending further negotiation will be allowed to lapse at the end of the year if the Soviets maintain their opposition to an oral declaration by West Germany.

This will not necessarily cut off all trade between the two countries. The West German government, however, will no longer have an inducement to try to persuade private traders here to purchase Soviet goods.

U.N. Troops Keep Congo Calm

By PATRICK MASSEY
LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (AP)—U.N. troops Sunday were reported maintaining an uneasy peace in Stanleyville after thwarting an antiwhite purge planned by Congolese rebels supporting imprisoned ex - Premier Patrice Lumumba.

A U.N. spokesman said the Oriental Province capital and Lumumba stronghold was quiet and that no Europeans have been arrested in Stanleyville.

A number of whites were seized earlier, however, in the Oriental towns of Punya and Aru. U. N. officials have promised firm measures to obtain their release.

U. N. representatives and a group of Western diplomats met during the day in Stanleyville with Antoine Gizenga, one of the triumvirate ruling the province in Lumumba's name.

The diplomats flew to Stanleyville Saturday to make sure their nationals receive adequate protection.

The determined stand taken by U.N. Ethiopian troops in Stanleyville foiled a planned reprisal program through which provincial leader Bernard Salumu hoped to force Congolese army chief Col. Joseph Mobutu to release Lumumba.

Salumu had threatened last Friday to round up Oriental's estimated 2,000 whites and behead some of them unless Lumumba was freed from a Thysville army prison.

With the full backing of Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld, Gen. Mengasha Iyasu, Ethiopian chief of staff of the U.N. force, told Salumu the United Nations would not tolerate the threats.

Phoenix Careful Homeowners Policy!

If you take pride in your home, you can save real money. Carelessness causes more than 75% of all insurance claims for damage or losses in homes. But if you're a careful homeowner, why should you pay for the careless, avoidable accidents of others? How it works. When you sign up with your nearest Phoenix Agent for the Careful Homeowners Policy, you start paying your premiums at the regular economical rate for Homeowners insurance. Rickenbacker's Son Is Subpoenaed By U.S. for Tearing Up Census Form

By GAY TALESE
(Copyright 1960, The New York Times Co.)

NEW YORK—William F. Rickenbacker, 34-year-old son of the famed World War I pilot, Eddie Rickenbacker, has been subpoenaed to appear Tuesday morning in Federal Court because he considered part of the 1960 Census Bureau's questionnaire "too snooping"—and tore it up.

While not objecting to the enumerators' right to count people, he did object to the special questionnaire sent to every fourth home in the nation that asked, among other things: How many bathrooms? What is the telephone number? If born outside the country, what language was spoken in your home? What country was your father born in? Did you work last week? How many hours?

Upon receiving this questionnaire at his home in Briarcliff Manor, N.Y., this spring, Rickenbacker labeled it "uncivilly inquisitorial and absolutely unconstitutional."

In the May 21 issue of the National Review, he wrote, "I have studied this snooping questionnaire. It does not relate to any constitutional requirement that I know of; it has not been addressed to the population as a whole; and I shall not answer it. Indeed, I have already torn it up."

Some day, when the summer satrap of the snooper state comes to ask me why I refuse to contribute my share of statistics to the national numbers games, I shall call for my lawyer."

On Thursday he called his lawyer. The night before his wife had been handed the subpoena directing that he appear at the U.S. Courthouse here.

Rickenbacker, an investment adviser who is a regular contributor to the National Review, said the subpoena was signed by U.S. Atty. S. Hazard Gillespie Jr. The questionnaire sent to one of every four homes had never been

Dutch Alert U.S. on Theft

HAARLEM, Holland (UPI)—Dutch police Sunday called on the International Police Agency Interpol to help recover two Rembrandt etchings valued at $8,000 stolen from the Teyler Museum here.

A police spokesman said the thief was expected to try to sell the etchings in the United States.

distributed by the census bureau prior to 1960. Householders were asked to mail the form to their local census district office. There were to be 400 such offices.

Priest Defies Laws Of Church on Letter

(Copyright 1960, The New York Times Co.)

NEW YORK—A Protestant Episcopal priest defied the laws of his church Sunday by refusing to read from the pulpit a pastoral letter issued by the Episcopal House of Bishops.

In his sermon at St. George's Church, where he is rector, the Rev. Edward O. Miller described the document as full of "pious religious jargon" couched in "archaic language" and "double talk."

SHEER MEDIOCRITY

"It is a piece of sheer mediocrity," he declared, "in a world looking to the church for a voice that is relevant and understanding."

The 4,000-word pastoral letter was prepared by the church's House of Bishops at its meeting in Dallas last month.

In accord with canon law a pastoral letter must be read in the 7,500 parishes of the church within one month after it is received.

The Dallas letter in essence affirmed that the ancient creeds of Christendom were as valid in the 20th Century as they were nearly 2,000 years ago.

PROCLAIM GIFT

It described the Apostles' and the Nicene Creeds as "proclamations of a gift whose kind and nature does not in itself change from generation to generation."

But, the letter added, "under the guidance of the spirit, man can grow in appreciation and understanding of this gift."

The Apostles' Creed, parts of which date back to the first century, is the older of the two. The Nicene Creed, formulated in 325 at Nicea and affirmed by the Council of Chalcedon in 451, is similar to but longer and more explicit than the older creed.

Geologists Find Ancient Skull

SYDNEY, Australia (UPI)—Queensland coastline. Australian geologists have found the fossil skull of a 100,000,000 million year old fish-eating monster four hundred miles off the coast. The skull, found at Yamboree Creek, was of a thirty feet long reptile called plesiosaurus.

East Point 7th and Proud of It

Mayor John Stith of East Point was out helping sign painters bring the city's welcome signs up to date. The signs heretofore have described East Point as Georgia's eighth largest city but—with a population of 35,653 in the 1960 census—it now ranks seventh. (Staff Photo—Dwight Ross)

Teachers at 2 N.O. Schools Told to Quit or Pay Stops

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI)—The Louisiana Legislature threatened to stop paying salaries of teachers at two integrated New Orleans schools Sunday night, and Gov. Jimmie Davis ordered the Legislature into another 30-day meeting.

The new special session will begin at noon, Dec. 17, and extend until midnight, Jan. 15.

Included in the proclamation ordering the call was authorization for the Legislature to consider tax measures.

Reliable sources in Baton Rouge have said Davis was planning to increase the state sales tax from two to three cents on the dollar in order to finance the skyrocketing costs of opposing the federal court's orders to integrate the city's schools. Such a tax would provide an estimated $50 million annually, according to fiscal experts for the state.

The House of Representatives passed, 96 to 2, a resolution pledging the Legislature will continue paying salaries of other teachers of the New Orleans School district "as long as they obey state laws and the policy of the Legislature."

"In other words," said Rep. Bryan Leimann of St. Charles Parish (county), "we're telling them, if you get out of Franz and McDonough 19 (the two integrated schools) we'll pay you, but if you stay in school, you're not going to get paid."

The same thing applied to janitors, bus drivers and other employees of the two schools, Leimann said.

Better Not Put Yule Lights on Aluminum Tree

Christmas decorators were warned Sunday by Georgia Department of Health officials not to hang electric lights on aluminum Christmas trees.

"They're beautiful and fireproof," Henry C. Steed Jr., director of fire prevention, said. "Decorate and admire them, but don't hang electric lights on them." Steed said a voltage leak from faulty electric lights or wiring on a metallic tree can result in a deadly electric shock if the tree is touched under certain conditions.

Steed also urged home owners to check all electric wiring in Christmas decorations, to use non-flammable decorations when possible and not to leave lights on when they leave the house.

Gov. Davis' floor whips also introduced four bills in the House before the House ordered speakers and reporters to leave during an executive session.

One of the new measures was nearly a carbon copy of a measure which a three-judge federal court overturned. It allows the governor to appoint new members to a new school board for Orleans Parish, but restricts the board's powers to taxation and borrowing money.

All four measures were certified as emergency legislation by Davis.

The other bills would:

1. Make it a misdemeanor to obstruct orders or judicial process of state courts, providing a fine of $1,000 or a year's imprisonment.

2. Allow school boards to sell, lease or otherwise dispose of schools when the schools have been closed indefinitely.

3. Repeal authority for the Orleans Parish school board to select its own attorney.

The Senate also went into executive session after a brief opening session.

Chatham Politicos Seek Customs Job

The job of collector of customs at Savannah, one that has been a prized political plum since the days of George Washington, is up for grabs again.

A reliable source told The Constitution Friday that two well-known Chatham County politicians are interested in the job now held by Mrs. Jessie Saylor, a Republican.

The two are Joe Griffin, no relation to the former governor, who leaped from obscurity to political prominence in the recent presidential campaign, and Mrs. Marion Faircloth, glamorous leader of women Democrats in Georgia.

The customs collector in Savannah is paid $15,000 a year. The job first became famous when George Washington nominated a prominent South Carolinian during his first term in office. The nominee was voted down in the Senate because neither Georgia senator approved him.

This touched off an historic debate which gave birth to the present patronage system known as senatorial preference. Since that time Georgia's U.S. senators have nominated the Port of Savannah collector.

of an attempt by Moslems waving holy war banners to mount a major insurrection.

It was the third straight day of bloodshed, marking the half-way point of President Charles de Gaulle's six-day tour to "sell" his plan for a semi-independent Algeria to the settlers who oppose the idea.

De Gaulle walked into a crowd of cheering Moslems at Tizi Ouzou 50 miles from Algiers as the streams of bournous Arabs in the capital poured down from their hillside suburban quarters into the European districts.

STREETS EMPTY

Europeans opened fire on them but the streets quickly emptied of whites as the Moslems tore through the main arteries, throwing home-made grenades, rocks, iron bars, paving blocks and anything else they could lay hands on.

Armed European settlers shot 10 Moslems dead and wounded another 125 to 200 in outlying sections of Algiers.

In mid-afternoon, a wave of thousands of Moslems surged through police cordons at the big Place du Gouvernement, just below the fabled Casbah.

DREAD WAR

They surged toward the city center and the government headquarters. Banners held aloft proclaimed a "jihad" — the dread Moslem holy war.

French paratroopers in camouflage suits—flown in for the emergency from the front lines in the rebel-infested interior — joined French zouave troops and infantry units in an attack. Carabines crackled. Scores of Moslems fell to the pavement.

Officials said 15 were killed and a large number were wounded. As darkness descended, main streets looked like battlefields, littered with broken glass, overturned cars, and bloodstains.

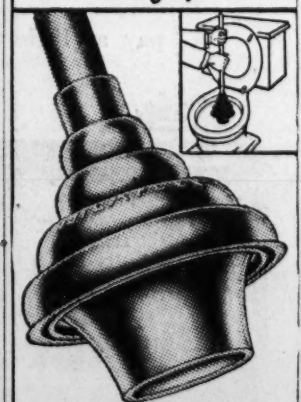

VOLLEYS INTO MOB

Troops fired volleys into a mob in the Ruisseau district southeast of the city center, where "some Europeans" died.

Tanks clanked over the pavement to positions in the mixed Moslem-white European area of Bel-el-Oued, northeast of Algiers.

The Casbah was sealed off with barbed wire. An 8 p.m. curfew was ordered. Strict censorship was imposed on wire service dispatches.

Don't Let Filibuster Bar Bills, Mansfield Urges

Anderson added. He said he is more interested in clearing the way for passage of a Kennedy program.

Vice President Richard M. Nixon, defeated by John F. Kennedy in the presidential contest, will be presiding officer of the Senate until Jan. 20.
Nixon could be expected to uphold the contention of the Democratic liberals that the Senate rules are open to change by a majority vote at the beginning of each Congress.

Republican advocates of civil rights share this view. While Republicans generally would be glad to see the Democrats get involved in a row among themselves, GOP senators are expected to take no party stand on the matter. Mansfield said he favors consideration of changes in the filibuster rule, "but I don't believe this should have precedence over the president's legislative program."

Rolls List Voter Dead 10 Years

general election in the counties where they now live.

In addition, there are on the list of Milan voters the names of at least 65 persons whose names do not appear on the voters registration list. The registration lists in Telfair County mean little or nothing, of course, because they have been bloated for years with the names of dead persons, multiple names for one person and numerous persons ineligible to vote.

Henry O. Cravey, principal of Sexton Woods Elementary School in DeKalb County, is listed as having voted at Milan. But Cravey said—and records showed—that he is registered in DeKalb and voted there in the general election. He left Telfair County about 20 years ago.

Mrs. Cravey, who never has lived in Telfair County, also is listed as a Milan voter. She is a registered DeKalb voter, her husband said, and has never voted in Telfair.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Hallman of Decatur, who moved from Telfair several years ago, also voted in DeKalb, but are listed as voting at Milan, too. Mrs. Hallman said she and her husband have not voted in Telfair since moving from there.

VOTED IN DODGE

Mr. and Mrs. Jess Brown of Dodge County, who are listed as Telfair voters at the Milan precinct, signed sworn statements saying they have not lived in Telfair during the past 12 years. They said they have been voting in Dodge County since moving from Telfair.

Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Conley and daughter, Hazel Conley, all listed as having voted at Milan, signed statements saying they were registered voters in Telfair's Temperance Precinct and did not vote in Milan. Calvin Conley is listed as having voted at both Milan and Temperance.

Glynn Conley of the Temperance district also is listed on the Milan and Temperance lists of voters. Conley said he voted only at Temperance.

SIGNED AFFIDAVIT

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Whittington Jr. of Eastman, Dodge County, have not lived in Telfair County for seven years, but are listed as voting at Milan. Both signed an affidavit swearing they had not voted in Telfair in the past four years. Whittington said he voted at Eastman last month.

Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Lancaster, who are eligible to vote in Milan, said they did not vote last month. However, their names appeared on the list of voters. Lancaster said he has not voted in three years; his wife said she last voted 10 years ago.

Another eligible voter, T. R. Yawn, a Milan farmer, said he voted, but his wife did not go to the polls. The names of both him and his wife appeared on the list of voters.

TOOK 2 BALLOTS

"When I went to vote they asked me if I didn't want a ballot for my wife," Yawn said. "I said I reckoned I did." He said he could not recall whether he or someone else marked his wife's ballot.

Asked if the procedure of allowing someone to mark a ballot for a relative has been common practice at Milan, Yawn said, "Yes, it has. But they talked about tightening up on it one time."

Eschol and Clarence Reeves, brothers, are on the Milan list, but both live in Dodge County with their father William J. Reeves.

VOTED IN DODGE

William Reeves said he and his sons are Dodge County voters and cast their ballots in that county last month.

He said Mr. and Mrs. Willie Reeves, his brother's son and daughter in law, who are listed as Milan voters, have lived for the past several years in Blackshear.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Harrell, formerly of Milan, said they were in Washington, D.C., on election day. Their names appear on the Milan list. "We didn't vote," Harrell said, "and I haven't voted in Milan in several years."

Harrell said his brother, William, whose name also is on the list, has been living in Missouri for the past six months.

Ike's Return Home

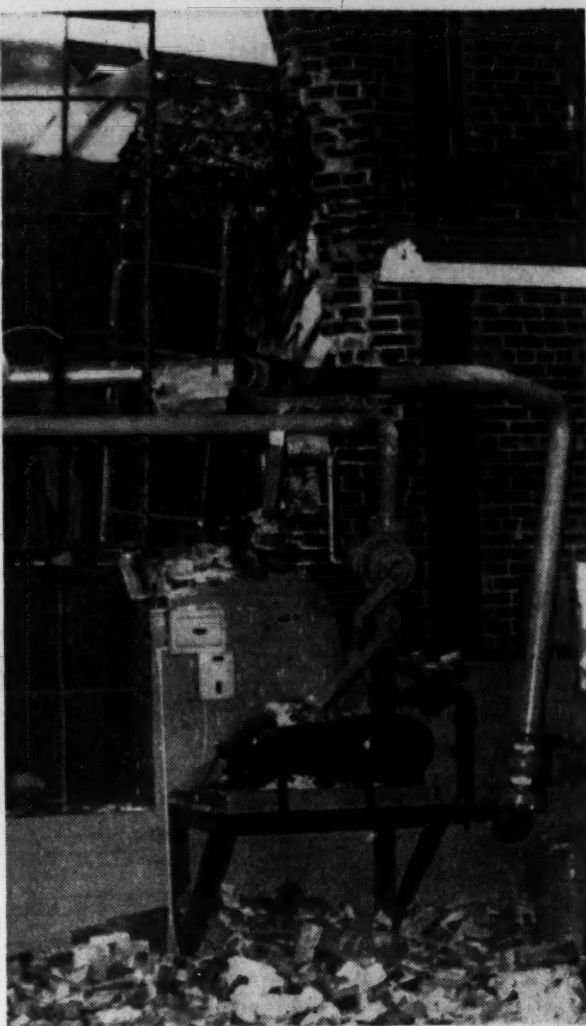

AUGUSTA (UPI) — President Eisenhower canceled plans to return to Washington Sunday because of snow and storms in the nation's capital that might have prevented his plane from landing.

The chief executive decided to leave at 8:30 a.m. Monday.

Steady rain in Augusta Sunday morning kept the President indoors at the Augusta National Golf Club, where he is relaxing this weekend. But the President went out to play another round of golf about 1 p.m. The rain had stopped by that time and he toured the course in 65-degree weather under cloudy skies.

Water service was not interrupted by the crash. One boiler had to be shut down and will be replaced.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Harrell, formerly of Milan, said they were in Washington, D.C., on election day. Their names appear on the Milan list. "We didn't vote," Harrell said, "and I haven't voted in Milan in several years."

Harrell said his brother, William, whose name also is on the list, has been living in Missouri for the past six months.

Letson, West Boost Sibley Plan

Orleans have been invalidated, the panel noted.

The Sibley Committee has recommended that local option with pupil placement features be substituted for Georgia's school closing laws.

West concurred with Letson's statement that the Sibley Committee's recommendations offer the best course presently available. The county superintendent added that he was "encouraged" by the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce's stand in favor of the Sibley report.

Discussing school building funds, Letson said a $6 million "windfall" from the State School Building Authority and some money left from a 1957 bond issue "will carry us through the next year."

But, he added, "there will be a need for a bond issue in the near future."

CITY SHORTAGE

Letson said the city is now short 300 classrooms a shortage predicted to reach 622 by 1965.

West said the county is short about 250 rooms. A $3.3 million county school bond election is scheduled for Jan. 24. Approval of the bonds, plus $2.4 million from the school building authority, would enable construction of 140 classrooms, West said.

Next to the desegregation question, Letson listed eliminating double sessions as the most pressing problem facing Atlanta schools. About 8,000 Atlanta pupils are attending schools a half-day, he said.

TRADE SCHOOLS NEEDED

Letson asserted that one or two trade schools are "urgently needed" here.

Consolidation of city and county schools will come "ultimately," he said.

Letson and West were questioned by Constitution Associate Editor George Boswell and reporter Richard Ashworth. Publisher Ralph McGill was moderator.

U.N. Heading to Congo Showdown suggested that the measure should:

1. State that the primary U.N. in the Congo is the immediate restoration of law and order, which Corea said could not be achieved by a "neutralist policy."
2. Request pro-Western Congolese president Joseph Kasavubu to convene both houses of parliament without delay.
3. Promote a roundtable unity conference that would bring together all the country's leaders.

Kasavubu, during his recent New York visit, had said he would summon such a conference as soon as he returned to Leopoldville. But no such meeting has been held in the turbulent Congo.

though Kasavubu has been in Leopoldville for about two weeks. 4. Direct the U.N. force in the Congo to take all necessary measures to disarm "all private armies acting under persons who have no legal authority."

Hammarskjöld's immediate reaction to Corea's statements was that by diplomatic and political means, the U.N. could encourage the reconvening of the Congolese Parliament and the summoning of the roundtable conference.

"But most certainly it is an entirely different proposition to say that we could put might behind such an invitation and thus, in fact, be those inviting," he said.

U.N. diplomats generally withheld their reaction until Corea puts his resolution in black and white. Russia's "restore Lumumba" resolution, however, was certain of defeat and appeared likely to get only the votes of the Soviet Union and Poland.

Wary delegates welcomed the day off Sunday. They faced a solid grind throughout the week as the assembly raced toward recess for the Christmas holidays on Dec. 20.

The assembly will act Monday on a recommendation by its steering committee that the recess extend to March 7.

Monday's schedule also listed three more meetings of the assembly's main political committee, which is debating the Algerian question.

Some 40 countries still awaited their turn to speak.

Milan Chief Denies Charges

The chief superintendent of the Milan precinct for the Nov. 8 general election Sunday denied charges of irregularities in the election.

"It's not true at all," said John H. Clarke. "There's not anything to it."

Clarke insisted that all ballots in the election were cast by "live, registered voters living in the district."

ON DUTY ALL TIME

Clarke, 67 years old, said he has been living in the Milan area all his life. He has been supervising elections in Milan off and on since 1920, he added.

He said he was on duty at the polls Nov. 8 from 6:50 a.m. until around 10 p.m. His meals were brought in to him, Clarke said.

COUNTED ONLY 295

Clarke and four other superintendents at the Milan precinct certified that 664 votes were cast Nov. 8. L. T. Yawn Jr., a Milan farmer, signed an affidavit saying that he was at the Milan precinct practically all day and counted only 295 persons going to vote.

Clarke said more voters showed up than Yawn counted.

"He didn't get 'em all," Clarke declared.

Louisville Poses Tall Hurdle for Tech

By TED SIMMONS

Unbeaten Georgia Tech will have to scramble to stay that way Monday night in Louisville.

When the Yellow Jackets meet host team Louisville in the opening round of the Blue Grass Tournament they'll be on the short end in two vital departments—height and experience.

Tech and Louisville play the first game of the Freedom Hall double-header. Western Kentucky and Utah State meet in the second game. Tip-off time for the Jackets is 8 p.m. Atlanta time.

Louisville presents Tech's biggest test of the young season. The Cardinals are a veteran club, with one of the tallest front lines in the country.

Undefeated in five starts, their most impressive victory was a 76-64 win over Xavier of Ohio Saturday night. They shot 65 per cent from the floor in the first half of that one, and finished with a 45.1 per cent accuracy for the evening.

Senior forward John Turner and guard Howard Stacey shared the scoring honors with 18 points each. Turner also contributed in 12 rebounds, displaying the form that prompted Kentucky coach Adolph Rupp to label him with a "one of the best in the country" tag.

At 6-5, Turner is the smallest man in Louisville's front line. The tallest is senior Fred Sawyer, a 6-11 giant who was shifted from the pivot to the corner this year. He is, as they say, formidable under the boards. Saturday night he got 16 rebounds.

At center Louisville has 6-7 Bud Olsen, a junior. Rob Rubenstein is the other guard. Both he and Stacey are effective from outside.

Despite this array of height, experience, scoring potential and the homecourt advantage, Louisville is rated only second best team in the tournament in hometown circles.

The role of favorite has been given Western Kentucky, another veteran club with a 4-0 record. Western was ranked high in pre-season polls. This is almost the same team that gave Ohio State such a go of it for 32 minutes last year in the playoffs, so if Tech gets by Louisville Monday night, the going will probably get rougher Tuesday.

Utah State, Western's first round opponent, was rated well in pre-season, but so far has been disappointing, having lost twice.

Tech flew into Louisville Sunday afternoon in time for a 4:30 workout at Freedom Hall.

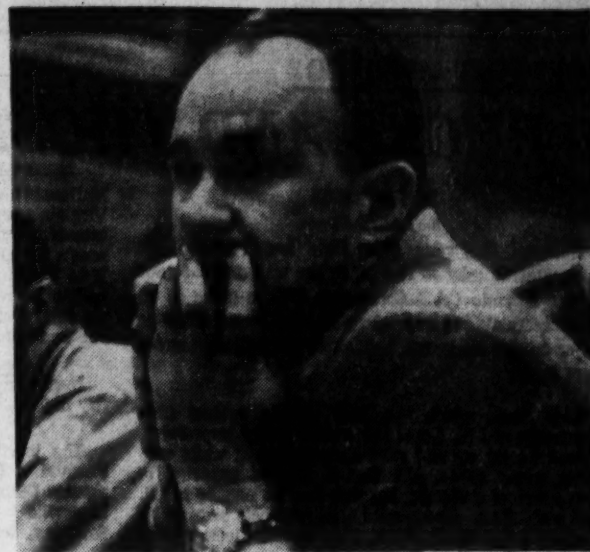

Jacket Coach Whack Hyder is expected to go with the same starting lineup he's used since the season started—Roger Kaiser, Wayne Richards, Alan Nass, Mike Tomasovich and Frank Landrey. Kaiser and Richards are the veterans. The other three are sophomores, but have been impressive in Tech's three straight victories.

Kaiser, the senior All-America hope, has been by far the biggest scorer. He's hit on 50 per cent of his field goal attempts and 13 of 15 foul shots for 81 points, an average of 27 per game.

The big fellow under the boards has been Nass, a tough 6-6 center who battles like a vet. Nass has picked off 44 rebounds in three games, an average of better than 14 each time out.

If Tech beats Louisville, Tuesday's opponent will be the winner of the Utah State-Western Kentucky game, probably Western. Monday's winners and losers play Tuesday night.

A Football Immortal

(Copyright 1960, The New York Times Co.)

NEW YORK—Just as Jake Kline, the Notre Dame freshman coach, had split his squad into separate groups of linemen and backs, the call came from Frank Leahy for freshman cannon-fodder to feed the varsity in a scrimmage. Slowest to join the group of backs and therefore in the front line by accident rather than design, Johnny Lujack was the first to be chosen.

"You," said Kline, stabbing a finger at Johnny. Then he made three more stabs: "You, you, and you." He wheeled toward the linemen for seven youths.

Daley

This was the early autumn of 1942 and Lujack was a 17-year-old quarterback from Connellsville, Pa. Then varsity and freshmen donned helmets and went violently to work.

"I was playing safety," recalled Johnny, "when a big varsity back broke through the scrimmage line and came at me. I wasn't going to stand there and get trampled to death. So I raced up and tackled him."

"Who made that tackle?" called out Leahy.

"Hey, you," said Kline, pointing at me. "What's your name, boy?"

"Lujack, sir," I said.

"This happened about three times and they got to know me. When we scrimmaged the next day the coach picked the four backs this way: 'Lujack, you, you, and you.'"

"But I've often wondered what would have happened to me if I hadn't been lucky enough to be in the front when the eleven men were picked that day. I might never have been discovered. Right?"

No. It might have taken him a couple of extra days to get started, but Johnny Lujack still would have been a star of such magnitude that he still would have been twice named to the All-America team as Notre Dame quarterback; he still would have been once named to the super-All-America, the all-pro team, as quarterback for the Chicago Bears; and he still would have been inducted—as he was last Tuesday—into football's Hall of Fame, the youngest immortal in the pantheon.

—It Could—If His Name Was Lujack

It is doubtful if anyone ever was placed in a more impossible spot than Johnny was in his first varsity start. Led by the great Angelo Bertelli, everyone's All-America quarterback, unbeaten Notre Dame drove relentlessly toward the national championship of 1943. But after six games, Bertelli was summoned into the service and the seventh game was with Army before a howling mob of fanatics at the Yankee Stadium.

Could so vital an assignment in so vital a game be entrusted to an 18-year-old sophomore? It could if his name was Johnny Lujack. The cool kid with the steel arm and the steel mind merely passed for two touchdowns and ran for another as the fighting Irish routed the Black Knights, 26 to 0. Then the Navy borrowed him for two years and he returned for his All-America seasons on the national championship teams of 1946 and 1947.

Historians tell us that the hero of the classic scoreless tie between power-packed Notre Dame and power-packed Army in 1946 was Lujack. Only one thrust had a chance of breaking the tugging deadlock. The mighty Doc Blanchard broke into the clear, touchdown bound. Then Lujack came whirling from nowhere to chop down the practically unstoppable Doc with a saving tackle.

—On Offense or Defense, a Great One

"A fine hero I was," says Johnny disgustedly. "Everyone was so tense that day, it was the worst game I ever played. I'm glad no one remembers the other three tackles I made. They were on Arnold Tucker. Know why I had to tackle him? He had intercepted three of MY passes. Some hero!"

Lujack was the rounded football player, as phenomenal on defense as on offense. After his graduation he joined the Chicago Bears under George Halas. This was the year when the Papa Bear was raising L in the league with the L boys, Luckman, Lujack and Layne. All three quarterbacking wizards were owned by Halas. Sid Luckman was at the end of his string and Johnny was being groomed to replace him. Bobby Layne was so mad at sitting on the bench that he demanded to be traded. He was at the season's end.

"George broke me in," said Johnny, "by having me start while Sid sized up the defense. Then he'd take over while I played defense myself. I tied a Bear record that year by intercepting nine passes."

"In 1949 I was ready to take over. My best day was against the Cardinals, in what was supposed to be a toss-up game. I threw six touchdown passes and set a league record of 468 yards on passes in one game; we won, 52-21. No one was prouder of a record than I was of that one. I thought it would last forever. But in the first game a year later Norm Van Brocklin broke it. It just goes to show."

By then I was starting to get shoulder trouble and became more of a runner than passer. That was when I made all-pro. But pressures from my family caused me to quit after four seasons. I have no regrets; it was wonderful while it lasted."

Lujack was only 26 when he retired and he's younger now than some of the star quarterbacks in the league. He might have been the greatest of all.

Italian Team Rips To Doubles Victory

Pietrangeli, Sirola Stun Yanks Buchholz, McKinley

PERTH, Australia (AP)—Italy's Nicola Pietrangeli and Orlando Sirola fought back into the Davis Cup Interzone finals Sunday by beating America's Earl (Butch) Buchholz and Chuck McKinley in the doubles, 3-6, 10-8, 6-4, 6-8, 6-4.

The victory, which ended on a wild note when McKinley threw his racket into the stands 40 yards away, put the decision of the best-of-five series on the final singles matches Monday.

The first match sends Buchholz against Pietrangeli, who is playing superb tennis, and the last one matches 6-4 Barry MacKay of Dayton, Ohio, against Sirola, who is three inches taller and the possessor of a serve perhaps two yards faster.

"I am not disappointed—I think we still will win the final two singles," said David Freed, U.S. captain. "We are leading 2-1 and the pressure is all on the Italians."

Vanni Canapele, the suave captain of the Italians, predicted the series will go down to the final match between MacKay and Sirola and said "Italy now has won a match in the Interzone Finals and that is so incredible in itself anything can happen."

Sirola beat MacKay this year in the French Championships at Paris—on clay, as opposed to the grass courts of the Davis Cup. Buchholz won in four sets over Pietrangeli at Wimbledon in 1959.

When McKinley dumped a half volley into the net for the point which gave the Italians the victory, he wheeled and threw his racket through the air. It landed in the second row of the open east stands among packed spectators, but none was hit.

It was only one of several incidents during the day which saw the crowd of 2,000 boisterously back the Europeans, who lost two heartbreaking decisions in the singles.

Once assistant U.S. Capt. Bernard (Tut) Bartenzen went to the referee and asked for the removal of a back linesman, who missed a couple of calls.

Referee Lynn Spencer refused, saying "you didn't argue when the Italians got some bad calls Saturday."

Once McKinley tossed a racket about 2 feet after dropping a point. Another time he dropped a ball which he had hit into the net. Each act was greeted with whistles and catcalls.

Buchholz drew a round of boos when he hit a ball violently toward the sidelines after missing a shot. He turned to the crowd and mumbled some inaudible words.

Still, the tennis was of a high

SEC PLAYER OF WEEK LICKERT LASHES IRISH, BRINGS KENTUCKY BACK

By AL THOMY

It was a cold November afternoon and Adolph Rupp was enjoying a football game from the Lexington, Ky., press box when a reporter lowered a cloud of gloom over his smile.

"Another Kentucky basketball powerhouse again this season, huh coach?" said the reporter as he slapped Adolph on the shoulder.

"No, no," answered Rupp. "There are three or four teams in the Southeastern Conference that might be better than we are."

"Guess Bill Lickert is ready to have a great season," said the spreader of joy.

"Just don't know. He's still a question mark, you know. Don't know how his injury will hold up."

Three games deep into the 1960-61 season and it appears

BILL LICKERT
Regains Old Form

the cloud of uncertainty is beginning to lift on this man Lickert. Fact is, he is the Constitution's SEC Player of the Week for his performance against Notre Dame, always a rugged customer for the Wildcats.

Young Bill, a senior, scored 21 points and hit the second-half go-ahead basket as the Cats trimmed Notre Dame 68-62 for the sixth straight time. Two years ago, as a soph, his 24 points also contributed to the downfall of the Irish.

The Lickert performance was more than gratifying to Rupp after Bill started slowly with nine points against VMI and 12 in the surprise loss to Florida State.

At one time last year it was feared Lickert's career was at an end. He was sidelined a month due to an operation for calcification of a thigh muscle. However, he came back to be the leading scorer in five of the Wildcats' last seven games, finishing with 288 points for a 14.4 average.

If his muscle troubles do not reoccur—and it looks like they won't—Lickert will surely be a bona fide all-America candidate. He can play either forward or guard.

At any rate, all SEC coaches

In the American Football League, the Houston Oilers won the Eastern Division championship with a 31-23 triumph over the Buffalo Bills; the New York Titans edged Oakland Raiders, 31-23; and the Dallas Texans trounced the Boston Raiders, 34-0.

The Colts, in losing to Los Angeles, failed to score a touchdown for the first time since 1956. This also marked the first time in 48 games that quarterback Johnny Unitas of Baltimore failed to throw a touchdown pass. His 47-game string is a league record.

Baltimore scored early in the game on a 9-yard field goal by Steve Myhra. Then, in the third period, Wade rolled out around his left end and reeled 66 yards to score. Villanova's last-period field goal clinched matters. The Colts moved the ball to the Ram 20 late in the game but halfback Alex Hawkins' fumble ended that threat with 45 seconds left to play.

Nick Pietrosante broke away for 43 and 40-yard touchdowns runs from scrimmage as the Lions beat Dallas. This was Detroit's sixth victory in the last eight games and kept them in the running for the Western Division

LOS ANGELES (AP)—It looked more like the reception room at Forest Lawn than the Baltimore Colts dressing room Sunday when Web Ewbank emerged from the Coliseum gloom and declared:

The Baltimore coach kept news-men waiting 15 minutes after the game while he consoled mourners inside the dressing room.

Despite the 10-3 upset by the Los Angeles Rams—the champion Colts' third straight defeat—Ewbank said the World Champions haven't given up in the National Football League's tight Western Division race.

NO BIG CHANGES FOR NAVY—JUST BELLINO

By STEVE SNIDER

NEW YORK (UPI)—Navy plans "some new wrinkles" but no drastic changes against Missouri in the Orange Bowl football game on Jan. 2.

That means coach Wayne Hardin will give All-America Halfback Joe Bellino his head and let him run—as usual.

"I got letters of advice from all over the world on what to do with Bellino before the Army game," Hardin said. "Some of the volunteer coaches suggested I use him strictly as a decoy and some suggested I use him sparingly and only in certain situations."

"But I believe when you've got something good you better use it."

And that something good is Bellino in his regular role of clutch runner, passer, receiver, blocker, tackler and pass defender.

So Missouri's powerful Big Eight representatives, the fourth-ranked team in the nation, can expect to see stocky Joe running from just about the same

DETROIT ARRIVED?

BUCKS AND THOSE ACC TEAMS WHOOP IT UP

By ED WILKS

The Associated Press

National Champion Ohio State has regained the touch, Detroit may at last be on the way and the race for the Atlantic Coast Conference title is going to be a beaut. That's the way things stacked up Saturday as major college basketball heads into the holiday tournament tangle.

Ohio State, which had little trouble against Ohio University and St. Louis but wasn't really impressive, showed its old zip and sting Saturday night while walloping Army 103-54. The Cadets weren't expected to have much of a chance, but they had no chance at all. Not with Buck All-American Jerry Lucas scoring 29 points in a fast-break attack, and John Havlicek holding Army ace Lee Sager scoreless for 25 minutes.

The Bucks, now 3-0, hit 23 of 26 from the field, started sending in subs after rolling up a 30-11 lead in 12 minutes and then crushed the Cadets 59-19 in the second half.

Detroit, long a comer in the big time, upset Big Ten hopeful Indiana, 81-79, in double overtime on a 20-foot corner set shot by Tom Villure in the last second. Charlie North, whose tip-in had tied it 79-79, and Dave DeBussche each scored 23 points for the Titans, who twice trailed the Hoosiers in the second extra period. It was victory No. 3 for Detroit, which defeated Utah State in the final 5 seconds last Monday.

In the ACC, Maryland (4-0), North Carolina State (4-0), North Carolina (2-0) and Duke (3-0) are on the prowl. Maryland won, 64-53 at Minnesota, with 6-7 Bob McDonald controlling the boards and Duke added to West Virginia's troubles with a 66-64 victory over the Mountaineers. A free throw by John Frye and soph Art Heyman's lay-up gave the Blue Devils the big push after West Virginia had tied it 57-57 with 2:40 left. The teams had to be recalled after leaving the floor to complete the final 2 seconds of play—after a West Virginia time out went unnoticed by the timer.

North Carolina was idle, but plays Kentucky Tuesday night.

The tournaments open Monday with the Bluegrass Festival at Louisville. It pairs Western Kentucky (4-0) against Utah State (2-2) and Georgia Tech (3-0) against Louisville (5-0). Louisville was the only entry at work Saturday, defeating Xavier of Ohio, 76-64.

This weekend, it's the Birmingham (Ala.) Classic, Virginia Tech (2-0) vs. Auburn (3-0) and Baylor (9-3) vs. Alabama (6-3); and The Steel bowl at Pittsburgh, Pitt (1-3) vs. Colgate (4-0) and Tennessee (4-0) vs. Duquesne (4-0), among the major tournaments.

Elsewhere last Saturday, Dayton defeated St. Joseph's of Philadelphia, 67-65, with St. Joe desperately trying to tap in the ball as the buzzer sounded. Temple, led by Bruce Drysdale's 22 points, defeated Navy 64-57; Wake Forest broke out of a tie with 11 points in the last 2½ minutes for an 84-78 victory over Penn State. The Deacons hit .500 from the field.

UCLA further scuttled NYU's bid as a power, whipping the touring Violets, 93-69, as Gary Cunningham scored 22 of his 24 points in 12 minutes of the second half. Kansas State, beaten by UCLA the night before, bounced back with a .480 shooting percentage for a 65-57 victory over Southern Cal. Nine consecutive free throws carried Wyoming to a 58-53 decision over Baylor, and slow starting Utah (3-2) smacked Texas Christian, 101-55, with Bill (The Hill) McGill scoring 23.

Bradley, the NIT champ, broke away from Butler in the last 4 minutes for a 71-65 victory. Missouri, with Chuck Henke scoring 27 points, beat Northwestern, 73-72. Tulsa defeated Oklahoma City, 59-57, on Gene Estes' jump shot at the buzzer. St. Louis handed Iowa its first defeat, 61-55, with Billiken balance overcoming Don Nelson's 21-point job for the Hawkeyes.

Wichita kept rolling, downing Iowa State, 75-58. And Drake beat Michigan, 83-72, with Gus Guyadon hitting 11 of 23 field shots over a zone and scoring 25 points. California won its 25th in a row at home, a school record, 51-43 over St. Mary's. Boston College became the first to run up 100 points against Dartmouth in 60 years, 100-66.

Notre Dame beat Bowling Green, 61-50, with Eddie Schnurr scoring 20 points. Wisconsin beat Marquette, 55-51, after Jack Ulewelling's steal and score with 1:08 left. St. Bonaventure came from 10 points back for a 78-69 decision over Eastern Kentucky. Tom Stith scored 28 for the Bonnies.

William and Mary defeated Virginia Military, 66-58, in a Southern Conference game. Jeff Cohen, 6-7, scored 20 points, after being held scoreless for 10 minutes by VMI.

In a major intersectional game, Tulane surprised Texas, 60-49, on a 17-point night by Jim Kerwin.

standard and kept the crowd thrilled for 2 hours and 53 minutes. Pietrangeli, after losing a marathon match to MacKay in the singles, came back brilliantly with no trace of despair. He was the best man on the court.

It was Pietrangeli's slashing returns off the backhand and his quickness at the net which resulted in breaking Buchholz in the sixth and 10th games of the final set.

The Americans, down two sets to one, had battled back to square it, and then grabbed a 3-1 lead in the fifth set on a break of Pietrangeli's service in the third game.

It looked like another tragic defeat for the Italians, until Pietrangeli virtually alone carried his team back into the fight.

Buchholz had a brief period of wildness midway through the match, when he missed several overhead smashes, but he came back strong in the last two sets. His blistering return of service was the highlight.

know that as Lickert goes, so goes Kentucky.

Rupp is more optimistic at this stage than he was a few weeks ago.

"We still have a way to go before reaching our full potential," he says, "but we are a lot nearer to being ready for the supreme test against North Carolina (Tuesday night in Greensboro, N.C.) than we were just a few days ago. The boys are still making mistakes that will have to be ironed out, even though they made up for them against Notre Dame. The important thing is that we seem to have found the spark all good teams must have."

In gaining Player of the Week, Lickert edged sophomore Jim Kerwin of Tulane, who scored 17 in a fine victory over Texas; Ray Groover, an improved Auburn shotmaker; Jack Waters, always dangerous Ole Miss scorer; Roger Kaiser, Tech's great leader; and John Johnson of Georgia, a star in the loss to South Carolina.

Sunday—and added hopefully:

"The Rams are always wildcats in their last game. They always seem to be playing for next year's salary."

Ewbank conceded the Colts missed the injured Alan Ameche at fullback but disagreed with Ram Coach Bob Waterfield's comment last week that the Baltimore running game has lost its potency.

"We gained almost as much on the ground as they did, didn't we?" Ewbank asked his questioners. It was Rams 113 yards, Colts 91.

Ewbank denied his Colts were too tense and said of his tired players:

"They've given everything but their blood."

Quarterback Johnny Unitas, who threw at least one touchdown pass in 47 straight games until Sunday, was asked how it felt to have his string ended.

"Records are made to be broken," Unitas replied.

From Press Dispatches

Don Carter and Marion Ladewig staggered in the last round, but still won $7,500 and $4,000 stipends in the rich World's Invitational Bowling Tournament Sunday at Chicago, Ill.

Carter, in the final position round, opened up with 212-209 and 245-224 victories over Joe Joseph, then yielded 187-165 and 211-202. But it was too late for Joseph, and Carter finished at 309-18 Petersen points, Joseph was 307-32 and veteran Steve Nagy third with 307-29.

The victory gave Carter a two-week total of $12,500 earned. He also won $5,000 Nov. 28 in a national tournament at Memphis, Tennessee.

Smyrna Regains Pitts for 'Tucky

By PAUL ATKINSON

Smyrna High School's unbeaten Panthers welcome aboard a familiar hand Tuesday night, just in time for the big weekend tests with Kentucky basketball powers, Ashland and Newport.

Panther coach Bill Bennett said Sunday night that lefthander Jimmy Pitts, the deft outside shooter who suffered a shoulder separation in his last game of football, would play some against Sprayberry in a 4-AAA West game at Smyrna.

Just whom the lean senior marksman will replace poses something of a problem for Bennett. "But it's the kind of problem you like to have," admitted Bennett. "Pitts will play in the front court, replacing either sophomore Randy Ramey or senior Albert Turner. Both have done exceptional work and I hate to break up a winning combination."

So far, Smyrna has swept to seven victories in a row. Victims have been McEachern, 63-35; Marietta, 49-46; Russell, 49-35; Cherokee, 53-50; South Cobb, 66-29; Osborne, 52-49; and Central Gwinnett, 68-47.

In those wins, Turner averaged eight points per game and spearheaded the defense, while Ramey, a growing 6-4 fellow, averaged seven points and aided 6-4 junior Rufus Adair in thorough control of the backboards.

The scoring, for the most part, has been handled by guards Jerry Brown and Charles Beckett, who have averaged 16.7 and 12.7 points per game. These have come on consistently fine outside firing.

"Pitts has looked as good as ever in practices recently," continued Bennett. "But we didn't want to bring him along too quickly."

Now the time has arrived, for Ashland is at hand for the Friday game at Oglethorpe's slick new fieldhouse. At the same time, Sylvan of 3-AAA, also unbeaten, will be colliding with Newport at Sylvan's gym. Smyrna and Sylvan switch opponents Saturday night and gather at the Sylvan gym. Tickets are on sale at Smyrna, Sylvan, Russell, Southwest DeKalb, College Park and Russell High Schools, latter four because they'll play prelim games Friday. Advance tickets are modestly priced at a dollar and 50 cents.

"These Kentucky teams," Bennett said, "are different from ours. They like to run and shoot; much like the pros in that they come down the floor, get a man open and fire away."

"How will we defend 'em? Well, we'll play our normal game. To be truthful, we like to shoot a lot also."

Smyrna's first foe, Ashland, likely will open with forwards Robert Hilton (6-2) and Larry Conley (6-4), center Gene Smith (6-6), and guards Steve Cram (6-2) and Harold Sargent (5-11).

Goalby Wins by A Shot Despite Stroke Penalty

Finsterwald Finishes 2nd

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Bob Goalby, a husky youngster from Crystal River, Fla., won the $200,000 Coral Gables Open Golf Tournament by one stroke Sunday despite a penalty he called on himself when his caddy stepped on his ball.

The handsome 25-year-old finished the 72 holes with a 12 under par 272, overcoming on the final nine holes a four-stroke lead held by Ted Kroll of Fort Lauderdale.

Goalby was one stroke ahead of Dow Finsterwald of Tequesta, Florida.

Kroll faded to a three over par 39 on the final nine while Goalby was carding a 34—and came in with a 274.

The caddy stepped accidentally on Goalby's ball on the final hole. Without hesitating, the Crystal River player called the one stroke penalty.

That left Goalby needing to sink a four-foot putt for a bogey five to avoid a tie with Finsterwald. He did it.

Bob Goalby, $2,800, 67-71-72-282; Ted Kroll, $1,400, 68-66-72-274; Dow Finsterwald, $1,900, 69-67-69-273; Don Fairfield, $1,200, 70-68-70-279; Dave Hill, $900, 71-68-73-281; Marty Furell, $920, 66-71-72-280; Henry Williams Jr., $920, 69-67-72-280; Wes Ellis Jr., $920, 68-67-72-280; John Harman, $920, 67-74-74-281; Bill Collins, $700, 68-71-74-281; Arnold Palmer, $700, 68-72-67-281; Don Massena, $610, 67-72-71-282; Tom Garrity, $610, 67-71-72-282; Gay Brewer Jr., $610, 71-69-69-282; Dave Ragan, $610, 71-69-69-282; Sam Sheard, $470, 68-70-72-283; Gardner Dickinson Jr., $470, 67-71-72-283; Tommy Bolt, $350, 71-69-72-284; Bob Bruce, $350, 71-70-74-284; John Berry, $350, 69-70-71-284; Jim Turney, $250, 67-71-71-285; Doug Ford, $250, 72-71-70-285; Davis Love Jr., $250, 71-72-67-285; Doug Higgins, $250, 71-69-71-285; Jim Ferree, $250, 70-72-69-285; Bob Nichols, $250, 70-68-70-286; Bob Gada, $250, 68-72-74-285; Mason Rutledge, $250, 71-70-74-284; Fred Hawkins, $250, 72-71-72-284; Don Gaudin, $250, 73-71-71-284; George Bernard, $250, 69-72-72-284; Frank Wharton, $250, 70-68-73-284; Lew Worsam, $250, 68-73-68-284.

Kroll had started the day at 202 with a two-stroke lead over Finsterwald and a three-stroke edge on Goalby. Kroll had a 32 going out and it looked as if it were all over. Goalby had a 33 and Finsterwald a 36.

Kroll and Goalby were playing in a threesome with Arnold Palmer, the big moneyman from Ligonier, Pa., who had started the final round at 208.

Palmer early eliminated himself as a threat when his wayward putter gave him a 36 going out.

Finsterwald had finished his round when Goalby called the penalty and approached Harvey Raynor, the tournament director, to find out if it was for one or two strokes.

It meant the difference between a tie and a chance for victory and he knew it.

George Star Played — Despite Wreck

This is the basketball spirit George High School's Pat Stephens has instilled in his players. His 6-3 center Richard Lovorn played the whole game in a 60-44 loss to Brown, even though he'd barely arrived from the hospital where he'd been treated for cuts and bruises after a minor wreck Saturday night.

George, which surprised West Fulton, 54-52, Friday night and picked up its first 3-AAA West victory as Lovorn scored 23 points, couldn't win this one.

Jan. 1. Los Angeles clinched Saturday with a 41-33 win over the Denver Broncos.

John Henry Johnson ran 87 yards on a snow-covered field for one touchdown, caught a 7-yard pass from Bobby Layne for another score, and passed 17 yards to Buddy Dial for a third TD in Pittsburgh's win over Philadelphia. The Eagles, using their regular players sparingly to avoid injuries, scored three touchdowns in the final period.

The Browns intercepted seven Chicago passes, including one which Bernie Parrish ran back 92 yards for a touchdown, to eliminate the Bears from title contention. The Browns set an NFL record by running back pass interceptions a total of 213 yards. Defensive halfback Bobby Franklin of Cleveland also carried back intercepted passes 31 and 37 yards for touchdowns.

The Giants turned two recovered fumbles and a pass interception into 17 points as they beat Washington on a field covered by four inches of snow. Joe Morrison caught a 9-yard pass from Charlie Conerly for one touchdown, Pat Summerall kicked a 17-yard New York field goal, and Tom Scott raced 15 yards with an intercepted pass for another TD.

In the AFL, George Blanda threw three touchdown passes and kicked a 53-yard field goal to help Houston beat Buffalo. The Oilers will play the Los Angeles Chargers for the league title.

Miteff Won't Keep Rademacher Date

CLEVELAND (AP)—Alex Miteff, Argentina heavyweight, said Sunday he won't fight Pete Rademacher here Tuesday because his eyes hurt from sun-lamp burns. Willie Besmanoff then was booked as a replacement.

Miteff took a physical examination Sunday and Dr. M. H. Lambright found him in good shape, except for the complaints about his eyes.

The Argentine battler said "I don't like to fight. It hurts me. I don't sleep for two nights. I want to fight Rademacher, but not Tuesday."

Miteff explained that in trying to heal bumps over his eyes that resulted from last Tuesday's bout with Henry Cooper in London, he got too much sun lamp.

Dave Ott, city boxing commissioner, ordered Miteff examined Monday by an oculist. If the examination doesn't bear out the

KUIKEN, NANCE SET FOR BERRY DUTY

Oglethorpe basketball coach Garland Pinholster said Sunday night that his 6-4 forwards John Kuiken and Bobby Nance would see more duty, commencing in Monday's home date with Berry College.

"Both men have come along well," Pinholster commented. "In our plan, we'd shift forward Buddy Goodwin to the guards, strengthening that spot, and put Kuiken and Nance in a battle with Roger Couch at forwards."

Pinholster apparently was looking past his immediate schedule to the Oglethorpe Invitational Tournament featuring talented small colleges, Birmingham-Southern, Lambuth and Sewanee. That comes off Dec. 21-22, with Oglethorpe and Birmingham-Southern paired and Lambuth and Sewanee in the other game.

Oglethorpe, fresh from a 79-56 demolition of Valdosta State that spotlighted 24 and 22-point nights by guards Tommy Norwood and Jay Rowland, faces an excellent marksman in Randall Kent of Berry, who was an all-GIAC choice, and a sturdy workman in 6-3 Grady Vest. Game time is 8 p.m. at the Oglethorpe field house.—ATKINSON.

Tech's Rollicking Roger Leading SEC Race with 27-Point Average

By AL THOMY

Rollicking Roger Kaiser, heart and goal of the Georgia Tech basketball team, has taken up what was interrupted by baseball, a summer vacation and football—his place at the top of the SEC scoring parade.

According to unofficial Constitution compilations, the Jacket senior is averaging an even 27 points per game in three trips to the court of competition.

This is a mite over three points better than his Southeastern Conference-leading figure of 22.8 during the 1959-60 season. Sophomore Jim Kerwin of Tulane holds second place with a 22.8 reading in four games.

Ole Miss' Jack Waters, who pushed Kaiser all last season, is in third place with a 21.3 average in four games, and Bobby Shiver of Florida completes the exclusive 20-point club with 20.5.

Kaiser's fast getaway makes him a distinct threat to come close to Bob Pettit's all-time SEC average of 33.1 points per game, established by the LSU star in 1954. Only other conference player to average over 30 points was Joe Gibbon, who hit 32.5 for Ole Miss in 1957. Gibbon is now a pitcher with the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Pro-Reds Overthrow Laos Chief

Besieged in Capitol

By ROY ESSOYAN

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — Quinim Pholsena, former minister of Information, took over the Laotian government Sunday and moved it closer to the Communists than at any time since the country became independent six years ago.

The Soviet Union promptly resumed its airlift and reportedly ferried arms and ammunition to this capital, which is encircled by pro-Western forces. Prompt support from neighboring Communist China and North Viet Nam also is expected.

PATHE LAO AID SEEN

The pro-Communist Pathet Lao guerrillas, who have been harassing successive Laotian governments since 1954 despite hundreds of millions in U. S. military aid to Vientiane aimed at wiping them out, are expected to rally to Quinim's side.

Paratroop Capt. Kong Le, who touched off the current round of civil war by deposing the pro-Western government in a coup Aug. 9, also is obviously in Quinim's camp.

During the three months Prince Souvanna Phouma had headed the now - deposed neutralist government and tried to work out a truce, Kong Le had been crying for battle with rightist and pro-Western forces under Gen. Phoumi Nosavan.

DEFEAT NEUTRALISTS

The three other members of Quinim's Cabinet are either outright leftists or inclined that way. The group brought Laos its third change of government in four days, and its assumption of power swept away the neutralist middle ground in Laotian politics.

On the military front, Quinim's takeover also stiffened battle lines between the outnumbered leftist troops defending Vientiane and forces led by Phoumi, whose troops outside the city are awaiting artillery reinforcements.

Military aid from the Communists to Quinim could be airlifted via North Viet Nam, which Quinim visited just before taking power Sunday. He returned promising that troops defending this city would be strengthened with arms from the Communists.

During Souvanna's rule, Moscow established diplomatic relations with Laos and promised aid. Soviet planes then began delivering drums of gasoline. The airlift had been cut off during the past few days of chaotic political maneuverings.

Seven Soviet planes landed at Vientiane airport Sunday morning and afternoon. They unloaded their cargo in utmost secrecy at the far end of the airfield, but witnesses said at least four howitzers and 14 cases of ammunition were unloaded. Soviet technicians also debarked.

Phoumi's strategy apparently was to pound away with artillery at the defense perimeter set up by Kong Le and his paratroopers, then march into the city.

Reg Murphy On Staff of Constitution

Reg Murphy, one of the youngest Nieman Fellows in the fellowship program's 20-year history, has been appointed political editor of The Atlanta Constitution.

The appointment was announced by William H. Fields, managing editor of The Constitution. Murphy will join The Constitution staff Jan. 1.

Reg Murphy

Murphy was 25 when he was named a Nieman Fellow for the 1959-60 academic year at Harvard. Only one other Nieman Fellow has been selected at such an early age.

The fellowships go annually to 10 or 12 of the nation's most promising newsmen. Murphy studied history and politics at Harvard.

A native of Gainesville, Murphy entered Mercer University in 1950. He edited the campus newspaper and was initiated into Blue Key, national honorary fraternity.

In 1952, he joined The Macon Telegraph's staff, handling assignments that included coverage of city and county government.

In 1955, Murphy opened the Atlanta bureau of The Macon Telegraph and News. As chief of the bureau, he has covered six legislative sessions and numerous political campaigns.

His wife is the former Virginia Rawls of Williamson. They have a daughter, Karen, 4.

GOOD HEALTH

We Must Walk More
For Sitting Takes TollBy JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.
Some little while ago a registered nurse wrote me:

Your article "Too Much Sitting Is a Health Hazard" is one I feel should receive widespread recognition. There is no doubt that Americans as a whole get far too little exercise. The two-car family is methodically softening its spine by riding comfortably on well-inflated rubber tires.

As a nurse in industry I note with alarm the number of increasing back complaints. I suggest another contributing factor is the automobile seat that is nearly flush with the floor.

The parent-chauffeur business is bad for both child and parent. The child is robbed of necessary physical exercise as well as the opportunity of dragging his heels on the way home from school while he invests all the fascinating bugs, buildings, trees and just things along the way.—D. R.

I have been pleasantly surprised to find so many people agree this subject is a matter worthy of writing letters about—and thinking about—and doing something about.

We don't get the exercise we used to get. We don't get the exercise people in a good many other countries get. This is going to exact a price. Indeed, in my mind there is no doubt but that it already is doing so.

Citing the remarks of Dr. Paul Dudley White, I think there is a distinct effect of lack of exercise on heart disease. Indeed, there are also figures showing that regular, moderate exercise has the effect of lowering the cholesterol in the blood.

In view of this, doesn't it seem pretty silly to sit around fretting over cholesterol figures—and not spending any of that worry-energy in walking, bowling, dancing or doing some simple thing that means exercise?

Whether low car seats have any effect on back troubles, as D. R. suggests, I simply do not know. She may be right, or not. But there's no question at all that she is right, frightfully right, that we've been having a huge increase in back trouble among industrial employees.

I'm inclined to think that, even if D.R. is right about this, we may be looking for too simple an answer by talking about changing the seats.

Better, I suggest, we think instead in terms of not sitting on those, or any other kind of seats, quite so much. Better that we all do a little more walking—starting, by all means, with the youngsters.

As to sitting—did I hear anybody mention TV?

Is there any way to remove a tattoo imprinted by a professional?—C. L.

I don't know just what you mean by "imprinted by a professional," because tattoos are tattoos. The only hopes are removal by skin grafting, or by skin abrasion—by a plastic surgeon or dermatologist. Or of covering it by a heavier tattoo of some other color. In any case, if you get a good deal of improvement, you've come out very well. Perfect removal is rarely possible.

Chrysler Denies Seeking Stock in British Car

LONDON (AP)—The Chrysler Corp. denied Sunday a British press report it is seeking a big piece of Britain's Standard-Triumph auto combine.

In a story splashed across its front page, Lord Beaverbrook's Sunday Express said such a financial deal was under way and would arouse "tremendous opposition" in Britain.

The Express story said Chrysler had come up with a share offer right in the middle of negotiations for a 100-million-pound ($280-million) merger of Standard-Triumph and the Leyland truck manufacturing concern.

Chrysler, said the Express, probably was aiming at gaining eventual control over Standard-

Triumph. The paper argued such a deal would be bitterly opposed in this country, coming so soon after American Ford's move for takeover of all shares in its British subsidiary.

Chrysler's denial of the story was issued in London and Geneva. Philip N. Buckminster, president and managing director of Chrysler International, said in Geneva: "Neither Chrysler Corp. nor Chrysler International intends to enter into competitive bidding against Leyland Motors for any portion of Standard-Triumph international stock."

Spain to Curb Anti-Gaullists

By BENJAMIN WELLES

(Copyright 1960, The New York Times Co.)

MADRID—The Spanish government is reported to have assured France that it will "neutralize" opponents of President Charles de Gaulle who have taken refuge here, until the Algerian crisis ceases.

It was not suggested that these measures would necessarily apply to Gen. Raoul Salan, the former French commander in chief in Algeria. Nevertheless, Salan, who fled from his refuge in San Sebastian late Saturday, was under renewed Spanish surveillance in a hotel here, according to highly placed informants.

UNDER POLICE GUARD

In addition, Pierre Lagallarde, a French deputy who was one of the leaders in the anti-Gaullist uprising in Algeria last January, was reported to be under Spanish police guard in a residence on the outskirts of Madrid. Lagallarde entered Spain clandestinely last week after having failed to appear at his trial for his role in the Algerian uprising.

The French have stressed the extreme personal danger that De Gaulle is risking in his visit to Algeria. They have received from high Spanish officials personal assurances that Lagallarde and his colleagues will be effectively "neutralized."

NO LEGAL GROUNDS

The Spanish reluctance to "neutralize" Salan was a result of the system in which he was held here and because the Spanish government feels it has no legal grounds to detain him.

Salan was transferred after the May 1958 rising returned Gen. De Gaulle to power. He evaded his Spanish police escort late Saturday and left the Hotel de Londres in San Sebastian, where he had been living for several weeks.

CONSTANT CONTACT

He was said to have been in constant contact with French political opponents of De Gaulle's policy of self-determination for Algeria.

He was located again Sunday morning when he arrived in Madrid. Informants suggested that Salan had felt hemmed in in San Sebastian and had decided to come to Madrid where there are numerous flights available daily to various points in Europe and North Africa.

Block Hit By Fire in Tennessee

DAYTON, Tenn. (AP)—A wind-blown fire swept a block of downtown buildings Sunday, including a 10-bed hospital, only a few hundred yards from the historic Rhea County Court House—scene of the famous Scopes evolution trial.

No injuries were reported. And there was no immediate estimate of the loss.

Four patients and a nurse were evacuated from the hospital as 75 firemen from five cities battled the blaze in 40-degree temperatures.

Two buildings were destroyed and three others badly damaged. The ruins continued to smoulder eight hours after the first alarm.

Officials said the fire apparently started in the basement of the Dayton department store and spread swiftly to a furniture store, a drug store, a dry-goods store and Thomson's Hospital.

The buildings, all two stories high, are situated in the middle of this east Tennessee town of about 2,000 persons, which became famous in the 1920s for the Scopes trial.

The trial centered around John T. Scopes, a young teacher accused of teaching the theory of evolution in Dayton public schools, a practice illegal in Tennessee.

One of Scopes's lawyers was Clarence Darrow and one of the lawyers for the prosecution was William Jennings Bryan, three times an unsuccessful candidate for president. Scopes was convicted and fined $100, but this was later reversed by a higher court.

Dr. E. D. Davis, county medical examiner, listed the death as suicide from ether poisoning.

The Rev. Mr. Eckel was formerly Canon chancellor at the Cathedral of St. Philip in Atlanta. He left that post in March of 1958 to come to this area.

The Rev. Mr. Eckel was a graduate of St. Stephen's College of New York and the Seabury-Western Theological Seminary in Evanston, Ill. He was ordained to the priesthood in 1936.

After working in New York and in Greenville, S.C., he became associated with the Atlanta cathedral in 1950.

While in his Atlanta position, he was resource advisor for the department of Christian education for the Diocese of Atlanta. He organized, trained and directed the Cathedral Bellringers, a nationally famous group which was invited to play at the lighting of President Eisenhower's Christmas tree in 1954.

The Rev. Mr. Eckel was the editor of a Dictionary of Church and Liturgical Terms, which was published in 1958.

Survivors include his wife and son.

South Florida U. Rise Is Traced By Chief Here

Legislators and educators from 16 Southern states, meeting here Sunday night, heard a college president describe how a major state university is being built.

The new school, the University of South Florida, opened this year with nearly 2,000 students, all freshmen.

Dr. John Allen, president of the university, told how the new institution took shape on a 1,700-acre tract nine miles from downtown Tampa.

The school, he said, is following an "all - university approach" which calls for broad programs of study for all students, regardless of their special studies.

DUEL IN VICTIM'S HOME

Policeman Slays Carolinian

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP)—A Greensboro man, John Billy Hawks, 31, was shot and killed at his home Sunday in a pistol duel with a policeman who was trying to arrest him for traffic violations.

Patrolman R. A. Stone, who shot the man, said he chased Hawks at high speed until Hawks finally stopped in his own driveway. Stone said Hawks then ran into his house and into a bedroom. The officer pursued, intending to charge him with careless and reckless driving and failure to heed a red light and siren.

Stone quoted Hawks as saying he had no right to arrest him in the house without a warrant. The officer said he explained that he could, and that he asked Mrs. Hawks, who was in bed, to telephone police headquarters for help.

The officers said Hawks told his

U.S. Says Georgian Using Child Labor

SAVANNAH—James P. Mitchell, secretary of labor, has filed suit in the U.S. District Court at Augusta seeking to enjoin R. C. Neeley of Waynesboro, from violating the child-labor provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act. The complaint names Neeley as owner and operator of several farming establishments in the Waynesboro area and alleges that he has engaged 14 minors in the production of cotton since Oct. 3, 1960.

Atlantan Dies in Plunge Of Freight Elevator

A 54-year-old Atlanta man plunged to his death in East Point early Sunday morning when a freight elevator cable broke.

John Mansulich of 426 Techwood Dr., NW, was using a fork-lift truck to load crates on a freight elevator at the Olin Mathieson Chemical Corp.'s insecticide division in East Point, police said, when the cable broke.

THROWN FROM TRUCK

Mansulich was on the elevator at the time, they said, and when the elevator struck the first floor, he was thrown from the truck and killed.

East Point Patrolman Clifford Hamby and Earl Godfrey said Mansulich's head struck a steel beam just above the eyes and he was apparently killed instantly.

After striking his head, the officers said, Mansulich was pinned beneath the truck. Firemen who were called to the scene removed the body and carried it to a doctor's office, where he was pronounced dead.

MAKING INVESTIGATION

Richard Wallaston, acting plant manager at the Central Avenue plant, said his office was making an investigation of why the elevator cable broke. He declined to comment further until the investigation is completed.

Mansulich, president of United Mine Workers District 50, is survived by his wife, the former Miss Katie Patrick of Barnesville; two daughters, Misses Barbara and Kay Mansulich, both of Atlanta; sons, Jerome and Keith Mansulich, both of Atlanta; two sisters, Mrs. Barbara Janosko, Star Junction, Pa., and Mrs. Mary Swets, New York City; and two brothers, Nick and Pete Mansulich, both of Star Junction.

Funeral services will be announced by J. Allen Couch & Son.

Cells Orbited In Radiation Still Alive

(Copyright 1960, The New York Times Co.) SAN ANTONIO, Tex.—Human cells that orbited the earth 31 times last month through a rain of radiation from a massive solar flare are still alive and reproducing normally.

The tissues were recovered from a capsule borne by the Discoverer XVII satellite.

"Our findings seem to indicate," said Dr. George W. Crawford, nuclear physicist and chief of the project, "that heavy shielding against space radiation may not be necessary—at least for trips less than 50 hours. Less shielding would allow more weight for useful payloads."

Bake Bacon
For More Time

All busy housewives who have several children to get off each morning to school find it important to save time.

If your family is fond of breakfast bacon, why not cook a whole package by baking it in your oven at your convenience, then drain well on paper towels, wrap slices loosely in aluminum foil, fold each under and store in refrigerator. When needed just place foil package of bacon on over rack and heat. This method also saves time with the washing of pans.

A Lesson Appears in Fabiola Story
--Parental Push May Deter Bliss

There is a lesson in the story of Fabiola, the Spanish girl who will become Queen of Belgium.

The feature writers have not been unaware of it. They have gasped, over and over again, that a girl can be quiet, gentle, too shy to appear in public in a bathing suit, too retiring to wear makeup and yet marry a king.

A woman, they have said, may be devoutly religious, serious, dutiful. She may, in fact, be an old maid. She may have had but one suitor in all her life. Yet he may see beyond her plainness to her character and make her his wife. He may be the wealthiest monarch in Europe.

This is a fairy story, a full pendulum swing away from Grace Kelly, her Serene Highness of Monaco. Grace, it will be recalled, started with everything. She had fresh, lucid beauty, family wealth, fanfare and fame. That she ended on a balcony on the Mediterranean smiling at her adoring subjects arranged in a picture-card setting has been pleasant, but it lacks the reassuring note that accompanies Fabiola's romance.

The Ugly Duckling yet is precious, and what has happened to her? When did she go out of date?

When did little girls of ten and eleven, with arms and legs spouting out as awkwardly as if they had been stuck on a gingerbread child by an ungifted baker, start competing in the salons of glamour?

Before they have finished hanging by their heels from the lowest apple tree limb, contemplating life upside down, little girls are catapulted into the main stream of society.

They have had so many baby doll permanents their hair is frantic with frizz. They have had their first bouffant evening dress before the slightest natural bulge has appeared to break the matchstick stiffness of its stem.

"A LITTLE BIRD TOLD ME..."
Mrs. J. T. Brumby, left and Mrs. William Threlkill Hear the News

Many are "popular" at 12, going steady, at 14. Their parents look upon this with misgiving, yet take comfort in the fact that everybody else is doing it and it therefore must be normal. And they are inordinately proud that their little image, her full lips touched with red and her young body rounding with tender curves, is even lovelier than they had hoped for.

Will she make the right school? Will the right girls become her friends? Will she get the right invitations? Will she make the right marriage?

She may make them all and be too bored, tired and disillusioned, even too empty-headed to know what to do with them.

For there is much to be said for the slow-bloomer. Children need the never-never years between childhood and adulthood to dream, to wonder, to listen, to loaf, to look, to evaluate, to stand apart before they are thrust into responsibility.

The slow-starter is often the most attractive matron in the group, once she has got her bearings and has taken her course.

She may be the only one smart enough to attract a king and keep him fascinated.

Extra Finishing Detail
Is Key to Appearance

At the risk of repeating myself, that extra little finishing detail can make all the difference in the world in appearance. And happily, it isn't usually difficult or terribly time-consuming.

Q. I'm making some of my daughter's bridal lingerie and would like to know how you make the edging on negligee collars and sleeves that look like little scallops made by hand. This finish looks so fine and delicate, and makes a plain negligee look expensive. I want her things to be as beautiful as possible. Mrs. W. C.

A. This lovely lingerie finish is called a shell hem. Turn and baste a narrow hem. Then turn hem again 1/4 inch and sew with running stitches. Then take two stitches over the edge, drawing the thread tight. Repeat this at intervals of about 1/2 inch until entire edge is finished (see illustration).

Q. What is the correct way to shorten a skirt that has a 2 1/2 inch hem in it and needs to go up 3 more inches? I don't want a 5 1/2 inch hem. Mrs. R. McG.

A. This is very simple. If the skirt is unlined, simply cut off the excess hem, stitch seam tape on new bottom edge, turn up and hem in place. If the skirt is lined, and the lining is attached to the skirt in the seams as though they are one, you must smooth out the lining where the new hem line will be so it doesn't ripple; baste lining to skirt along new hemline and just above where new bottom edge will be cut off excess hem; sew seam tape along bottom edge and turn up as usual.

Q. Recently, I have seen ready made skirts and slacks that have a hidden or completely concealed zipper. There is no top stitching and it looks like a regular seam. Can you tell me how to put in this type of zipper? Mrs. F. S.

A. I have received many letters asking about this zipper. The procedure is not a problem, but finding the zipper is. At the moment, it is not available over the counter. It is made in Japan and sold only to clothing manufacturers. However, one of the large zipper manufacturers here is developing one of its own to sell to us who sew.

Q. I've never made large full ruffles before, like a dust ruffle, and I'm not sure how to figure out my yardage. Can you tell me how much longer the unruffled fabric should be as against the finished ruffle? Miss C. G.

A. For a full ruffle, start out with a length of fabric 2 1/2 times longer than the finished with a length of fabric 50 inches long.

A booklet containing 15 ideas for gifts you can make is now available. These gift ideas have been selected from Patricia Scott's most popular columns.

The London Look

New Fashion Face Is Willing to Wait For Discerning Men

By RAYMONDE ALEXANDER

Thank goodness men are taking their clothing as seriously as women in this enlightened age. No longer is Dad satisfied just to have his back covered. While he still may be low man on the totem pole as far as the family clothing dollar is concerned, he does recognize the value of up-dated dressing.

True, he doesn't particularly relish the idea of being the first to wear a new idea. Nor does he wish to be the last. He doesn't like for these new things to slip it on him overnight either. He likes to be forewarned that a change is brewing. This gives him ample opportunity to mull it over, to adjust his sights, to get used to new possibilities.

To these gentlemen a flag is raised as the signal to start a new line of thinking. This flag is a dead give-away in heralding a new fashion look for men. It's the Union Jack flag and the look it represents is the London Look.

As described by the leading men's fashion magazine, it is a manner of dressing that looks back at tradition and past authority and brings them both up to date, keeping all that is good and dropping all that is purely associated with a past way of life. Innovations have been added to meet the needs of contemporary living.

Men will not latch onto it overnight. They never do when a change in dress is concerned. After all, some of the fashion looks such as Ivy League and Continental are just now taking on meaning for many men. Part of the reason for this is that the changes in men's fashions are harder to define in words and pictures than are the changes in women's apparel.

THE LONDON LOOK

To help you recognize the London Look, here are its basic features:

Shoulders are honest with a hint of suppression at the waist, mild cutaway in front.

There is a slight flare to the skirt of the jacket, varying from conservative in town clothes to extreme in country clothes.

The jacket is usually three-button, with the center button slightly above the normal waistline. There is more collar than on the current Italian styles.

Pockets are man-size and slits and vents are deep enough to be functional.

SHORT TOPCOAT

The popular topcoat is short, some well above the knee, others just below. Double-breasted models are important. The look is inclined to be sporty, giving a dashing appeal to more formal town clothes.

Of course, the London Look is far from pure as it reaches these shores, but already its influence is being felt locally. For instance, Hart, Schaffner & Marx has given the British style flavor to a suit of British worsted and to a topcoat of imported cashmere.

The British are careful to mate suit and topcoat to the appropriate hat. And while British hats are not extreme in design and have the small shape of the American hats, they do differ. The bowler looks right with a topcoat while the hat with gentle side pinches and a brim that is snapped the width of the eyes, providing a soft roll at sides and back, complements the suit.

In the traditional British pattern is the natural shoulder suit of miniature houndstooth check. The vest, of wool and cotton blend, is a reversible import, one side patterned and other side plain.

JACKETS WITH AN ACCENT

The most popular sport jacket derives its styling from the hacking jacket — an ancestry that may be noted in the American coat with slanting pockets and side vents. It's made of a patterned imported Scottish wool. Also in the sport coat field and featuring a British accent is the blazer, worn typically British with an ascot.

The sweater is a favorite man's garment in Britain and may be expected to become equally important here. Pull-overs are the standouts but the cardigan is held in high regard.

Because the London Look is a sturdier-looking silhouette, it is natural to expect footwear to reflect the more shoe look. Not necessarily heavier, shoes will come a little higher up on the foot, especially over the vamp.

As was mentioned, the authentic London Look may be several seasons getting to these shores but there is proof around now that it is coming.

President-Elect Kennedy Sets Plans For Naming Women to High Posts

WASHINGTON — (WNS) — President-elect John F. Kennedy plans to open up new frontiers for women in government service in the next four years by naming them to high-level jobs never before held by women.

Sources close to the future president say he plans to have a woman in the Cabinet, later if not in the early future, and expects to name women to some of the regulatory agencies as well as to the posts traditionally held by them.

The woman most likely to win a post in the cabinet is Representative Edith Green D-Ore., a former schoolteacher who was re-elected last month to a fourth term in the House of Representatives.

Her nomination may not come however until, after some of the future President's legislative program is passed by the 87th Congress in which Mrs. Green, a member of the important House Education and Labor Committee, is expected to play a major role.

President-elect John F. Kennedy has been consulting with Margaret Price, vice chairman of the Democratic National Committee and director of its women's activities, on qualified women for appointment, and has a list for suggested posts on his desk.

Among them, besides Mrs. Price who is considered a strong possibility for a Presidential appointment at the sub-cabinet level, are Dorothy Vredenburg, an attractive widow from Birmingham, Ala., who has served as secretary of the Democratic National Committee for 16 years; Rudd Brown, two-time unsuccessful candidate for Congress in California; Marjorie McKenzie Lawson, Washington attorney and general counsel for the National Council of Negro Women, who served as chairman of the civil rights section in the recent campaign; Elizabeth Smith, national committeewoman from California who is credited with helping swing that state's delegation to Kennedy at the Democratic convention.

Teen Wins Lower Rate Of Crimes

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (WNS)—If teen-agers won more arguments around home, there would be less juvenile delinquency, a noted professor of education and psychology at the University of Michigan believes.

Dr. William H. Mills said that all you have to do is to look at a cellar ball team in any league to see how demoralizing it is to get shut out all the time. Such teams often become so bitter and frustrated that they draw more penalties than those fighting for first place.

HOME LEAGUE

He pointed out that discussion and argument is the "league" in which most adolescents are competing — at school, in their own bull sessions and at home.

"If a child always is on the losing side in the home battles, he stops battling at home and carries it outside," Dr. Mills said.

So he advises parents to let their teen-age sons and daughters win now and then, even if it is necessary occasionally to introduce a particular subject on which he can triumph.

Dr. Mills warned that you cannot "throw" an argument because that patronizes Junior.

Most school youngsters have enough savvy about debating by the time they are in high school to know when they are being talked down to, and when someone is letting them win.

1ST-HAND KNOWLEDGE

He said that the best stratagem is to pick a subject about which the teen-ager is likely to possess superior first-hand knowledge. Adults usually call the turn on table and living room conversation and they almost invariably take topics where the younger generation is bound to come off second best, through sheer lack of experience and know-how.

The main thing for grownups to avoid, said Dr. Mills, is the feeling that it is necessary always "to pin back the ears of the young," lest they begin to feel their oats.

Then everybody is in deep trouble, adults and teen-agers alike, said Dr. Mills, and the label of juvenile delinquency quickly is applied.

Take a Short Circuit to Success With Your Tree-Lighting Chores

Georgians can lighten the burden of holiday decor by taking a short circuit to success.

J. D. Mitchell, expert for the lamp division of a local appliance company, and Myrtle Fahs-bender of Bloomfield, N.J., residential lighting director for the firm, have revealed the results of their expert research to help homemakers solve the problem of how to light the family Christmas tree.

"It's easy to become embroiled in the strings and tree," Mr. Mitchell observed. "But like most other projects, this can be eliminated if good planning is put into operation."

VARYING LENGTHS

The experts pointed out that electrical strings come in varying lengths, containing from seven to 25 bulbs.

"You should figure out how many you need before you buy lights for the tree," Miss Fahs-bender said. "Skiplining on lights can lead to an unattractive, spotty appearance."

She observed that for a strikingly full look, a six-foot tree requires about 80 bulbs, while a tree that is four feet in height can be beautifully brilliant with 36 lights. She offered the following table as a guide to Georgians in deciding how many bulbs to get: If tree is five feet high, 56 bulbs; six feet, 81; seven feet, 110; eight feet, 144; 10 feet, 225.

By BETTY CARROLLTON

"Before you start to trim the tree," warned Mr. Mitchell, "straighten out the strings of lights along the floor, removing all kinks. Make sure all the bulbs are burning brightly, that none of the cords are frayed, and that none of the sockets are damaged. Then disconnect the strings and arrange the colors alternately if you are going to have a multicolored tree."

For a more contemporary look, use bulbs of all one color. The new flashing bulbs give a startling effect. This year, Christmas trees can be decorated with entirely new-styled bulbs that are round in shape, and, when unlighted, resemble the polished tree ornaments which have been favorites for generations. Available in pretty tints—including red, blue, amber, green and fuchsia—the colors are made of a new transparent material. When lighted, the result is an unusual sparkling effect that adds gaiety to the tree.

SHORT 'N' ROUND

Another 1960 series is shorter and rounder than the standard pointed, fluted lights. Bulbs have a pleasing modern shape to grace a festive tree. Equally attractive are the new bulbs which are decorated with gay swirls of various bright colors, adding a fiesta atmosphere to the tree. These bulbs have candelabra screw bases for multiple burning strings.

START AT TOP

String lights around the tree, starting at the top and work down. Place lights on the inside boughs first, and work from the trunk outward to the tips of the branches. After each string is in place, light it and stand off to check the work before proceeding with the next string. For taller trees, strings may be hung straight down from the top to bottom on the outside branches.

After the strings are all in position, disconnect them before beginning to hang ornaments on the tree, again working from the top down.

"The style of tree selected and the manner in which it is to be lighted and trimmed are as personal as the decoration of a home," Miss Fahs-bender said. "Through the years the ways of decorating and lighting the indoor Christmas tree have been many and varied."

"However, the traditional natural evergreen tree continues to be the favorite. And the favorite decorations continue to be multicolored lights, colored ornaments, icicles, swags of tinsel and scenes under the tree."

WIRING PLAN PLAYS SANTA CLAUS

Electric Dryer Is Christmas Gift That Keeps Right on Giving

Stars-in-the-eyes for years to come will be the result if you make this an electric dryer Christmas. Have it installed before the holidays so that the lady of the house will have more time to spend with the family. If you're plagued by low housepower, you don't have to give up the idea. Via the Georgia Power Wiring Plan you may still make this her happiest Christmas ever.

Just how is the wiring plan playing Santa Claus? ... by helping countless Georgians to enjoy the benefits of better living—electrically. The Georgia Power Co. is paying up to $200 toward the installation of adequate service entrance facilities in the area they serve. In addition to the service entrance facilities a customer, to qualify, must install certain 230-volt circuits and appliance(s). An electric dryer is one of the qualifying appliances.

If the wiring is inadequate at your house, your first step is to contact an electrical contractor, appliance dealer or the nearest Georgia Power office. When you've been given the details of this unique wiring plan you'll see that it is one of the most liberal programs ever to be offered.

In all instances the service entrances under the wiring plan are of a capacity to serve the customers' power requirements today and in the foreseeable future—an additional bonus to go along with the dryer gift!

So, make this an electric dryer Christmas. No longer will your wife be at the mercy of rainy days and wintry blasts when it's laundry time. She'll join countless other housewives in saying,

Wash Day? Any Day

Mrs. T. W. Horne, 208 Cogar Dr., is pictured with her recently installed electric dryer. Mrs. Horne is one of the many thousands of Georgia homemakers already benefiting from the Georgia Power Company wiring plan. Phone one of the competent electrical contractors listed in the ad at left.

"Clotheslines are for the birds!"

The whole family will benefit. Mother will have more time for the other pressing matters of homemaking. Dad will enjoy those soft fluffy towels (so different from the "sandpaper" towels that use to come off the line). The kids won't run out of bluejeans, underwear or socks when an electric dryer is on the job, and, best of all, any day can be wash day.

An electric dryer is more than a practical gift... it's a gift of comfort, convenience and modern electrical living. The Georgia Power wiring plan can help you to make it a gift that will keep on giving. Phone one of the competent electrical contractors listed in the ad at left for a free housepower checkup.

Curran-Landscaped

The new Fulton Federal Savings Building in East Point was landscaped by Curran Nursery & Landscaping Co. several weeks ago to withstand "traffic" while adding to the good looks of the property. Curran is known in the South and Southwest Fulton area as a "common sense gardener" who backs its products and stresses long-life as well as beauty. The company is located at 2365 Sewell Rd., SW. Phone PL 5-6162 or PL 5-7049.

Curran Nursery & Landscaping Co. Expands to Serve Industrial Firms

"Shrubbery grown in the South for the 'South' is the Curran Nursery & Landscape Company credo that has been serving homeowners in the South and Southwest Fulton area for a decade. Now the credo has gone to work in the yards of business and industrial concerns in that area, with striking results, that are built to last as well as to beautify.

A case in point is the new location for Fulton Federal Savings in East Point. George Curran did much of the landscaping himself, putting to work the "common sense gardening" for which he is famous. Mr. Curran is currently serving as president of the Atlanta Nurserymen's Association; he is also a member of the South Fulton Men's Garden Club. Both organizations know him for his practical approach to landscaping.

As with most commercial and industrial plantings, the "traffic" factor was predominant at Fulton Federal Savings. Needed was permanent low-growing shrubs that would not be damaged by passers-by. The plantings needed to be attractive but those that would not detract from the building. Then too, the job necessarily entailed the planting of shrubbery that was long-lived and maintenance-easy.

Of the 600 plants that are adding to the good looks of the new Fulton Federal Savings property, at least 400 are different types of dwarf hollies, including the familiar "box-leaf" and spreading types, as well as some of the very new dwarf types, such as Cornuta Rotunda, Stokes, Dwarf Yaupon and Hellers Hollies. Pyracantha and ivy grace the fence line, and winter red berries form a screen in the parking lot. Specimen-sized Hopa Crab trees, as well as pink flowering dogwood in specimen sizes were also planted.

Two new types of mulch were used in the planting, one of black sedge peat moss, which of with pine straw, and pea-gravel mulch, which has distinct advantages in protecting the roots from heat and cold while giving a very pleasing visual effect.

One of the finest of the new plants being used is a new-type of Pyracantha that is thornless, grows very low and bush-like, and in normal years is loaded with red berries. This is known as the low-dense variety.

Photinia Glabra and the very popular Cleyera were the largest plants utilized. Only three small areas of grass were planted. Due to the lateness of the season Rye was selected, but Tiway-Bermuda will be planted in the spring. According to Mr. Curran, this is considered to be the finest of the newer vegetative grasses for this area.

As part of their follow-up service, Curran just recently planted pansies at the Fulton Federal Savings lot, and will substitute other flowering plants in the spring.

The nursery will also follow-up with maintenance service if the customer so desires.

The Curran Nursery & Landscape Company boasts in its staff the combined experience of 50 years. Earnest Fearigo serves as display and sales manager; Douglas Noble is in charge of layout and design. George Curran oversees the entire operation, stressing "common sense gardening" and "good planting theory." He also does a great deal of the landscaping.

The sales and landscaping lot is located at 2365 Sewell Rd., SW, where a wide assortment of shrubs, plants and trees are on display. Complete lines of insecticides, fertilizers and seeds are

For one of the most practical Christmas gifts of all, give safe, long-wearing tires from Gordy Tire Company!

Officials at Gordy Tire Company say that each year many people do give tires—and that without exception the people receiving tires consider them one of their most important and valuable gifts.

At Gordy, they are set up to handle gifts of tires in two ways: (1) You can purchase the tires outright and actually place them under the Christmas tree if you wish — and Gordy will later mount them at no cost for the person who receives them. (2) You can purchase Gift Certificates for either new tires, retreads or even tire service which will be honored when the person receiving them visits either of Gordy Tire Company's two locations, 14th at the Expressway or 666 Stewart Ave., SW, near Glenn.

"Gifts of tires are especially timely because of the big reductions we are currently offering on both blackwalls and whitewalls," George Boyd Jr., manager of the West End location, said. "This makes it possible for you to buy first-line tires that were manufactured to give maximum safety, blow-out protection and long mileage for very little more than you'd pay for cheaper tires that were made to sell at a low price."

Of course, a first-line tire by a nationally known manufacturer, backed by the famous Gordy double guarantee, makes a better Christmas gift—and the savings on such top-quality tires at Gordy

'61 Peter Plenty Mobile Unit

Ownership of a 1961 Peter Plenty mobile soft ice cream unit is described as one that is now bringing many individuals a weekly income of $200-$300—in their own business. The company's experienced fleet management offers a program of continuous assistance to dealers throughout the South. For full details call 755-1611, ext. 100.

$1,250 CASH PUTS YOU IN BIG PROFIT BUSINESS

Peter Plenty Is South's Largest Mobile Soft Ice Cream Company

When a hard-working man like yourself, who earns between $75 and $100 each week, can become the owner of his own business, earning $200 to $300 per week—that is news! When the only element necessary, other than a sincere desire to build a profitable career is the requirement for as little as $1,250 cash—then this is big and exciting news! And when these results can be achieved in the first few weeks of your new business—then this is certainly worth looking into further.

Atlanta - headquartered "Peter Plenty" announces its 1961 program for small investors who wish to enter their own business. Peter Plenty is the National Franchise Division of The Soft Ice Cream Corp. of America (SICCOA), the only major firm in the booming Mobile Soft Ice Cream Unit industry, with its headquarters in the South. SICCOA is also the nation's largest fleet operator of these unique "dairy bars on wheels."

A new kind of success is being written by many men who are realizing the life-long dream of operating their own business enterprise, with a minimum investment. Men formerly in the $4,000 to $9,000 income bracket, are said to be doubling and tripling their earnings in a remarkably short period of time, as the earnings in this new industry start virtually from the first day of operation.

The company manufactures Mobile Soft Ice Cream Units which operate under the trade mark "Peter Plenty." Each unit is a completely equipped "dairy bar on wheels"—dispensing one of America's favorite refreshments with a complete menu of cones, sundaes, milk shakes and other related products. These self-contained mobile units are fully air conditioned, having their own electric generator, hot and cold running water, and virtually the same equipment found in the more costly "drive-in" ice cream stores.

Each Peter Plenty unit operates in an exclusive territory granted to each dealer. Atlanta dealers will have the full use of the company's extensive facilities where all the supply and service requirements necessary are ready for immediate use, by new dealers.

Dealerships are available throughout the South, and there are currently successful operations in Columbus, Athens, New nan, Griffin, Augusta, as well as other areas.

The company does not charge a franchise fee. Dealers purchase their equipment with as little as $1,250 down payment for completely reconditioned 1959 units. A $2,000 down payment will enable a dealer to start with a virtually brand-new 1960 unit. The brand-new 1961 units require a $3,500 down payment. The balance of the purchase price is financed out of profits over a 4-year period. Company officials say that the 1961 Peter Plenty units rank among the finest in the entire industry. Many new features are incorporated in these units that are not available in any competitive units.

The company is the first in its field to offer 4-year financing to all dealers with their purchases of new or reconditioned equipment. This permits Peter Plenty dealers to realize a greater cash income from the very beginning of their operation than that available under competitive programs.

Absolutely no previous experience is needed by new dealers. The company's trained supervisors are available for continuing assistance even after the quick but thorough initial training given every dealer. Supervision is provided in every phase of your new business, including route planning, operating techniques, merchandising and maintenance.

Complete details can be obtained by calling the company offices at 755-1611, ext. 100, or by writing to Peter Plenty, 1195 Sylvan Road, SW, Atlanta 10, Georgia. The company is a member of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce and invites interested individuals to check thoroughly with the company's local bank references.

Emory Gets Fund To Study Program for Teacher MA

Emory University has been awarded a $2,000 grant from the Fund for the Advancement of Education to study the master of arts in teaching programs at five colleges offering such programs.

The fund was established by the Ford Foundation in 1951.

Under the grant, Dr. Edward T. Ladd, director of the division of teacher education at Emory, will study the master of arts in teaching programs at Harvard, John Hopkins, Goucher, Duke and the University of Chicago.

Dr. Ladd said these programs allow a student to major in his chosen field during his college years, taking few, if any teacher training courses.

Then, the professional training comes during the year he works for his master of arts degree.

Dr. Ladd said, "This makes training for teaching more like training for law or medicine, where professional preparation follows liberal arts training. It also provides a new approach to recruiting and preparing teachers with more opportunity for subject matter and academic training."

The Georgia Department of Education recently indicated it would modify its requirements to encourage development of this type.

5♥ Pass 5♠ Pass
6♥ Pass Pass Pass

Opening lead: Q of ♠.

Here are three problems on duplicate bidding for you to consider. How would you handle them? The suggested answers are presented below along with the play of today's hand.

1. You are South and hold these cards:

♠ K 9 7 6 3
♥ A 8
♦ K J 4
♣ 8 7 2

The bidding has gone:
North East South West
1♥ Pass 3♠ Pass
3NT Pass ?

What call do you make?

2. You are South and hold these cards:

♠ A J 5 3 2
♥ K 6
♦ A 7 5
♣ 8 3

The bidding has gone:
West North East South
1NT Dbl. Pass ?

What call do you make?

3. You are South, vulnerable, and hold these cards:

♥ 10 8
♦ J 6
♣ A K Q J 6 5 2

The bidding has gone:
West North East South
1NT Dbl. Pass ?

What call do you make?

4. You are declarer of today's six-heart contract, and West opens with the queen of spades. You take it with dummy's ace and lead a heart. East follows with the queen. Study only the North-South cards, then plan your play.

ANSWERS TO QUIZ

1. South bids four spades. Although 10 tricks at no-trump would give him a trick score of 130 points (10 points more than four-odd at spades), the spade contract is sounder and thus safer. Most of the other North-South pairs will for one reason or another reach four spades, and if South sticks with the majority he is sure to get several match points, even if the no-trump contract turns out to be superior. By joining the minority of no-trump players, he is shooting for top or bottom score.

2. South bids four hearts, although he has better support for diamonds. North has shown at least a 5-5 two-suiter, and five diamonds should be safe for a trick score of 100 points. But at hearts he can take only 10 tricks and still do better, scoring 120 points.

3. South bids three no-trump. Partner's double is intended primarily for penalties, but if South passes and doesn't receive a club opening lead, declarer may be able to run four tricks and go down only 500 points. By playing three no-trump, South should be able to make his vulnerable game and score 600 or more points.

4. South makes his heart slam by conceding his trump loser at the most convenient time, which is at once. When East puts up the queen, West is placed with four to the 10, giving him a certain heart trick. As declarer must draw trumps before running the clubs, he lets East hold the trick with the heart queen.

East leads a diamond, and declarer takes the ace, ruffs a spade, leads a heart to the ace and ruffs his last spade on the board. He re-enters his hand with the king of clubs, draws West's remaining trumps and runs dummy's clubs, discarding two diamonds. He loses only a trump trick.

If declarer wins the first trump, he goes down. He can ruff his two losing spades in dummy, but West will ruff the third club to prevent that suit from being run. If declarer plays the ace and eight of hearts at tricks two and three, West will win the 10 and continue a heart, limiting dummy to one spade ruff.

What call do you make?

3. You are South, vulnerable, and hold these cards:

♥ 10 8
♦ J 6
♣ A K Q J 6 5 2

The bidding has gone:
West North East South
1NT Dbl. Pass ?

Board to Air Teacher Pay

Proposals to give pay raises to teachers with advanced degrees and aid those seeking doctorates were scheduled for action by the Board of Education Monday.

Dr. John W. Letson, school superintendent, said he would recommend that personnel within one semester of getting doctorates be given a semester's leave with pay to complete their work.

He also said final action was expected on pay raises for teaching personnel who have credits beyond a master's degree and for those holding doctorates.

Approximately $30 a month would be added to the pay of those holding T-6 certificates from the state, signifying work beyond a master's degree but below that of a doctor's degree. Those who obtain their doctorates would get additional average pay of $50 a month.

Dr. Letson said that the salary boosts would apply to all personnel in the system except the superintendent and area superintendents.

U.S. Complacency Worries Benson

Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson said here Sunday that he did not fear any invasion of this country by any foreign power, but does fear our loss of freedom through complacency.

Benson spoke at the quarterly conference of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints at the church building at 1450 Ponce de Leon Ave., NE.

Benson is a lay leader in the Mormon church.

"Russia will never overtake this country as long as we stay free and they continue their system of coercion and force," the secretary told an overflow congregation at the Sunday afternoon service. "The Russian system is based on atheism. We must not let freedom slip away from us drop by drop."

Benson said that our strong system of government was based on "free enterprise—a profit motive, private property, and the right to exchange the goods we produce in free markets. All these freedoms are missing in the Communist philosophy."

Trade Winds

82 Pct. of Buying Agents Refuse To Build Up Stocks

NEW YORK—A strong telltale is at hand to indicate that American industry is headed for a period of noticeable drowsiness.

A confidential survey by the editors of Purchasing magazine found that 82 per cent of the buying agents would not increase inventories now even if suppliers cut prices.

Obviously the purchasing agents reflect the views of their top-level managements.

That there will be no significant upturn in the national economy prior to the third quarter of next year is the experienced view of R. Russell Pippin, treasurer of the giant Du Pont Co. But he believes the net result for 1961 will approximate 1960. In other words, business economy for all 1961 will be no better than 1960, but not much worse.

Recession?

Some business analysts say the fact that the steel industry had to absorb the Dec. 1 worker wage increase is proof positive the nation is in a recession. Steel users throughout the entire postwar era have had little or no difficulty passing price increases along to the final customer. But this time the steel companies were warned that price increases will not be accepted by the public. Bluntly, business is that bad.

Profit Outlook

The profits squeeze is expected to continue through 1961. A confidential survey by the editors of the magazine Nation's Business shows through 3 percent look for a rise in their profit per dollar of sales 47 per cent said it will be no better than 1960, while 21 per cent owned up there will be a drop.

Profit for IH

Investor's guide: As a leading producer of trucks and farm equipment, International Harvester could benefit in 1961 from the stepped-up highway program and promise of increased farm income. Smart money is taking a long-pull position in Eastman Kodak shares, while others are doing tax-loss selling. Investment managers favor the new management in Brown Co.—old established maker of paper products.

Dollar Defended

The U.S. dollar panic-mongers are on the run. Reason: Washington is using its vast diversified arsenal of weapons in defending the dollar. And should Congress legislate a special high interest rate to be paid on commercial bank deposits of a fixed period, multi-billions of international "hot money" would pour into the United States.

Steel Duller

Steel industry reports are discouraging. Bright spots are fading. The nation's 1960 output will be near 100,000,000 tons—about 25 per cent less than trade leaders predicted earlier in the year. And indications are 1961 will be as dismal. The 1960 fourth-quarter profit outlook is dimmed by the industry absorbing the Dec. 1 wage boost to the tune of about $4 a ton at a time when production is running below a 50 per cent rate. Even in the third quarter several steel companies operated at a deficit and others failed to cover dividend requirements.

U.S. Volkswagen?

If Detroit auto manufacturers want to curtail foreign competition, and sharply, all they have to do is produce a "compact compact" as durable as the popular Volkswagen. If done in volume, it would be a most profitable venture.

Proof to Consumer

To boost consumer confidence, a new program has been blueprinted by the Advertising Council. The education move will prove that the long-range trend of the U.S. economy is definitely up. The drive slogan: "Let's keep rolling ahead!"

Probe of Labor

This is for sure by the incoming Kennedy administration and Congress: A thorough investigation, with resulting legislation, to clear organized labor of racketeering and corruption. This might be extended to include several industries now under the supervision of government agencies.

Mrs. A. D. Wood Is Dead; Taught at Smith-Hughes

Mrs. A. D. Wood, who retired in 1954 after 30 years of teaching commercial courses at Smith-Hughes Vocational School, died Sunday in a private hospital.

Mrs. Wood lived at 128 Harold Byrd Dr., Decatur. She was a member of North Decatur Methodist Church and was active in church work there, acting as secretary of the Children's Sunday school department.

Mrs. Wood, the former Miss Clara Ward, graduated from Oglethorpe University with bachelor of arts and master's degrees in English.

She was born in Luthersville, but spent most of her life in Atlanta, before moving to Florida in 1954 with her husband, who died in 1958. She returned to Atlanta last year.

Funeral services will be at 3 p.m. Tuesday at Spring Hill, the Rev. Reynolds W. Greene and the Rev. Raymond Brock officiating. Burial will be in Greenwood Cemetery.

Surviving are two sisters, Mrs. Thelma Ward Austin of Atlanta, and Mrs. A. M. Covington of Tulsa, Okla.

William I. Axtell, 60, Dies; Teacher and Businessman

William Ivan Axtell, teacher, government worker and businessman, died at a private hospital Sunday after a brief illness. He was 60.

Mr. Axtell's last teaching post was at Sandy Springs High School, where he worked until he became ill last week. He began his teaching career in Iowa, his native state, and came to Atlanta in 1928 and became a teacher at old Tech High and Commercial High, where he taught for about 10 years before becoming associated with the government.

During World War II, Mr. Axtell was with the Office of Defense Transportation and then became associated with various business firms in Atlanta.

He returned to teaching in 1954 with the Fulton County Atlanta school system. He was active as director of Hi-Y youth work in addition to his teaching duties.

Mr. Axtell was a native of Malvern, Iowa. He was a member of Inman Park Methodist Church, was on the board of stewards and was past president and teacher of the Friendship Bible Class there.

Mr. Axtell lived at 4340 Kendall Court N.E.

Funeral services will be at 10:30 a.m. Tuesday at Inman Park Methodist, the Rev. Lamar Cherry and the Rev. Harry Mitchell officiating. Burial will be in Crest Lawn Cemetery.

Science Shrinks Piles New Way Without Surgery Stops Itch—Relieves Pain

New York, N. Y. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids, stop itching, and relieve pain—without surgery.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by a doctor's observations. Pain was relieved promptly. And, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where a doctor's observations were continued over a period of many months! In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such astonishing statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of 10 to 20 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne®)—the discovery of a world-famous research institution. Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body. This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H®. Ask for individually sealed convenient Preparation H suppositories or Preparation H Ointment with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug counters.

Steel Use Far Above Mill Output

CLEVELAND (AP)—"When consumers start buying as much steel as they're using, demand will increase by one million tons a month," Steel magazine said Sunday in its weekly review.

Since April steel consumers have cut inventories by eight million tons, or an average monthly reduction of more than one million tons, the weekly journal of metalworking reported. Stockpiles could shrink another million tons this month.

Present inventories of about 11 million tons are less than steel users had at the end of last year's 116-day strike, Steel said.

Inventory liquidation should end during the first quarter of 1961, unless consumption collapses, the journal added. "When consumers start buying as much steel as they're using, production will move up to at least 60 per cent of capacity."

Operations were at 48.3 per cent of capacity last week, Steel said, a decline of .8 per cent. Largest decline was in the Cleveland district, which slipped four points to 46 per cent of capacity, joining the Pittsburgh, Youngstown and Buffalo districts at below half-rate production. Four other districts—Chicago, Cincinnati, Northeastern and Northwestern—were at 51 per cent operation last week.

After holding for four weeks at $28.83 a gross ton, steel's price composite on No. 1 heavy melting grade of scrap declined to $28.67 last week.

'Goat Man,' Wife Finally Get Heat

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP)—The "goat man" and his wife are going to have heat this winter for the first time since they began their lonely vigil on Big Goat Island off the South Carolina coast near Charleston.

J. L. Cameron, who is developing the island located behind the Isle of Palms, said Sunday a wood stove along with pots, pans and dishes have been donated to Mr. and Mrs. Henry Holloway and enough money was raised to build the Holloways a small home.

Holloway is 84 and his wife is somewhat younger. They left the city about 30 years ago and lived in almost complete seclusion on the Isle of Palms before moving to Big Goat Island to escape the growing colony of summer residents.

Now Big Goat Island is becoming increasingly popular and the Holloways are not too pleased with the number of summer residents.

Many summer residents donated their remaining food to the elderly couple before leaving the island at the end of the season.

"I think they were glad to see everyone go," said Cameron.

Pollution Price Set at 10 Billion

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Public Health Service said Sunday it will cost the nation $10.6 billion to clean up its polluted lakes and streams during the next decade.

The estimate was included in figures released by the health service prior to the national conference on water pollution which opens here Monday.

Leroy Burney, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare.

The three-day conference was called by U. S. Surgeon General Leroy E. Burney at the request of President Eisenhower and Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Arthur S. Flemming.

1,500 ATTEND
Some 1,500 representatives of federal, state and local governments, industry and agriculture, conservation groups and civic associations will attempt to outline the nation's water pollution control needs.

In a pamphlet prepared for the conference, Burney called water pollution "one of the pressing social and economic problems of our time."

HEALTH PROBLEM IN
"It is most importantly a public health problem," he said. "It is also a problem in water management, for without pollution control our country can not have enough water for its needs. In addition, it is a problem in conservation and esthetics."

The health service said that about half the $10.6 billion needed to clean up the nation's waterways will have to come from federal, state and local funds. The remainder will have to be provided by industry.

Red Skelton Faces Major Surgery Today

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Comedian Red Skelton was scheduled to undergo major surgery Monday for a ruptured diaphragm apparently caused by the many pratfalls he has taken during his career.

Friends and doctors said the many comic falls made by the 47-year-old Skelton could easily cause the tear in the thin membrane separating the lungs from the stomach cavity.

Skelton entered Cedars of Lebanon Hospital last week for a checkup, complaining he hadn't been feeling quite up to par.

For Jordan Road
LONDON (AP)—Under a new agreement with Jordan, the United States will supply $2.1 million for construction of a 17-mile highway from Jerusalem to the Dead sea.

I've added 450,000 and 1 people to my Christmas list.

450,000 of them are strangers, but they've been giving me presents for years. They've made my life—and yours—a lot easier. At last I have a way of remembering them.

These 450,000 are members of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union. Their new union label is now in every woman's or child's garment they make. As I shop for clothes this Christmas, I'm going to make sure I find that label inside. That way, with every purchase, I'll be giving 450,000 people my support.

I figure the better off they are, the better off I am. So, as I remember them, I'm remembering a 450,000 and 1st person: I'm giving a better future to myself.

You see, clothes play a part in my future. I want to go on dressing myself and my children well. For years, those ILGWUers have helped the American fashion industry to give us the world's best fashion buys.

As unionists, they've done even more for us. Fighting first of all for themselves, they got rid of the sweatshops and firetraps (perhaps you've heard of the Triangle Shirtwaist fire). They won the seven-hour day, the five-day work week, health funds, retirement benefits, paid vacations. If they hadn't fought for and won these, would these now be part of our lives?

Then there are all the laws they've fought for. Social security, old-age assistance, public housing, federal aid to education, minimum wage. Their union helped to win all of them—for themselves and for all of us.

And of course they do a lot—as neighbors and citizens. They're constantly pushing for stronger fire codes, building codes, health codes, school construction, everything I'm for, to make my community a better place to live.

So I'm glad these people now have that ILGWU label so I can identify their clothes as I shop. It's a good feeling to remember 450,000 strangers when they've proved to be such good friends.

Symbol of decency, fair labor standards and the American way of life

ALL TIRED OUT TV Show To Focus On Working Mothers

"The Working Mother" will be the subject for the next Special for Women series on TV, Friday, Ch. 2, at 9:30 a.m.

A composite cast study of the problems of one working mother will dramatize the reasons why women seek work outside the home (economic necessity, desire for intellectual stimulation, and retreat from the boredom of housework).

It will also describe the dangers inherent in a situation where the mother is away from home (guilt feelings about leaving her children, resentment on the part of the husband who feels his role as family provider and head of the house is threatened, and the possibility of child neglect).

Using the techniques of previous two Specials for Women, this presentation illustrates the disparity between theories about working women and the practical realities of a nation's economy geared to the presence of working women (they earn one-fifth of the national income in wages and salary).

GO TO WORK

Twenty-two million American women go to work (one-third of the nation's labor force, of which 12.2 million are married). The average working mother is 40 years old and the average age of her children is 11. The program will point out that the conflicts the working mother faces are typical of a changing society.

Pauline Frederick will act as reporter for the show, interviewing Dr. Margaret Mead, noted anthropologist.

Here are some salient excerpts from the show's script: "The average working wife gets very little more help from her husband and family than the non-working wife. She has to schedule every move."

"The average working wife lives in a five-room house and contributes 40 per cent of the family income. Her average annual income is about $3,000 per year. Her average family income runs over $7,000."

"Generally, the working wife spends 20 hours a week planning meals, cooking, marketing, dishwashing, emptying the garbage. She spends about 12 hours making beds and cleaning, six hours doing laundry and an hour mending. About 61 per cent of working wives say they are either 'exhausted' or 'quite tired' by bed time. This is exactly the same percentage as wives who don't work."

"In spite of the demanding schedule, working wives entertain as frequently as housewives. They spend as much or more time reading, going to the theater, participating in community activities and socializing."

"Over 28 per cent of the working wives hold clerical or statistical jobs. Thirty-nine per cent are skilled laborers, industrial workers or service workers and 12.8 per cent are professional people."

As I See It

She's a Sight for Sore Eyes Even Though Her Own Are Weak

By PAUL JONES

I think it was Dorothy Parker, the poetess, who wrote the line, "Men don't make passes at girls who wear glasses." But anybody who has ever seen Polly Bergen on television knows that is an outdated misconception.

Polly is a living doll, with or without glasses. I like her even better with her specs. And I think this goes for millions of other red-blooded American men, to say nothing of the women.

Jones

With or without glasses, Polly is a looker. She's as bright-eyed and as pretty as any girl in entertainment.

Just for kicks, you might want to compare the four-eyed Polly with the two-eyed Polly Monday night. She's going to appear on TV with and without specs. On "To Tell the Truth," the wonderfully refreshing game show on Channel 5 at 7:30 p.m., Polly will wear her lenses because, as she says, "I'm terribly near-sighted."

"I'd be hard put even to see the contestants on the show, let alone study them for clues for their identity," Polly explains.

Later Monday night, Polly will appear on Bob Hope's special and she won't be wearing her specs.

For some strange reason, producers who set up musical-variety shows on TV think that girls who wear glasses aren't glamorous.

POLLY BERGEN JIMMY DURANTE

I wonder if they have ever seen Polly on "To Tell the Truth."

At any rate, Polly won't wear her familiar horn-rimmed glasses.

es. She's memorized every line of dialogue and she has rehearsed her movements about the stage so she can move from one camera station to another without bumping into other performers on the show. Once, while appearing on stage without glasses, Polly ran into a co-worker, who was so nonplussed he forgot his lines.

THIS PIECE is not intended to influence any women to trade in their contact lenses for horn-rimmed specs because not every woman looks like Polly Bergen.

Polly, as a matter of fact, can't wear contact lenses. "I can't wear them," Polly says, "because of some peculiarities in the interior shape of my eyes." Don't ask me to explain that statement.

DURING THE HOPE show, Polly might not be able to see but she will be SEEN, as well as heard.

If you remember, Polly was heard but not seen on Hope's first show this season, the telecast of Oct. 3. This was the night a telephone technician goofed, which resulted in Hope being seen mouthing his monologue, but the voice viewers heard was Polly Bergen's—coming from another show on a rival network.

Oddly enough, Hope wanted Polly to appear on the Oct. 3 show, but she couldn't make it. Following the blooper, she sent him a wire saying, "See, I was on your show after all."

Jimmy Durante and David Rose and his orchestra will be on hand Monday night (Channel 2 at 9:30 p.m.) — to hold Polly's glasses.

All I can say is that Polly looks better than she sees.

'Facts of Life'

PERRY MASON'S OPPONENT

Actor Talman Returns to Work

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Actor William Talman is back losing courtroom battles to TV's Perry Mason after a nine-month layoff he says almost sent him to the poorhouse.

"It's going to be a merry Christmas after all," said Talman upon reinstatement as Hamilton Burger, the district attorney in the top-rated CBS-TV series.

Talman got bounced last March after he was arrested and charged with lewd vagrancy at a Hollywood party. Police alleged that guests, male and female, cavorted in the nude.

WILLIAM TALMAN
"I Am Grateful"

But Talman, who has never beaten Raymond (Mason) Burr in a TV court, won dismissal of the charges. A judge ruled the prosecution failed to show that any law had been broken.

Talman, Burr and the show's producer, Gail Patrick Jackson, got thousands of letters urging Talman's return.

Said Talman: "I am grateful to all who had a hand in returning me to the family I love as much as my own, and especially at this time of the year."

He added that Christmas had looked very bleak.

"I earned about $3,000 in the time off, mostly from selling scripts under a pseudonym. I couldn't collect unemployment insurance because I was drawing residuals on shows I had previously made.

"I don't want to use the word blacklist — that's a dirty word—but I even had trouble selling scripts under a pseudonym."

"I am especially grateful to Gail and Ray. No matter how much the pressure from outside, they are the ones who got me reinstated."

There was no announcement of the return. A newsman spotted him back at work.

Big Films Dumped On Video

The largest group of post-1948 motion pictures from a major studio to be released to television has been leased to television by Columbia Pictures.

The group of 275 pictures includes over 200 that were produced by Columbia Pictures after 1948, a period during which Columbia won 15 principal Academy Awards and accounted for a dozen of the biggest money-making pictures in the industry.

Among the post-48 pictures are "All the King's Men" starring Broderick Crawford, "Born Yesterday" starring William Holden and Judy Holliday, "The Caine Mutiny" starring Humphrey Bogart and Van Johnson, "Death of a Salesman" starring Frederic March, "The Solid Gold Cadillac" starring Judy Holliday and Paul Douglas, "The Last Hurrah" starring Spencer Tracy, "3:10 to Yuma" starring Glenn Ford, "Jeanne Eagles" starring Kim Novak, and "Phffft" starring Judy Holliday and Jack Lemmon.

Also in the group are some of Stanley Kramer's post-48 productions, such as "The Wild One" with Marlon Brando, "The Four Poster" with Rex Harrison, "The Juggler" with Kirk Douglas, "The Happy Time" with Charles Boyer.

AT THE MOVIES

Margot Fonteyn In Ballet Film

By BILL POPE

If you missed the Royal Ballet's performances here over the weekend, or if you just plain can't get enough of ballet, you might want to take a look at the Peachtree Art's musical offering, beginning Wednesday.

It's called "The Royal Ballet," and Margot Fonteyn—absent from the Atlanta season—is the headliner in sequences from Tchaikovsky's "Swan Lake," Stravinsky's "The Firebird" and Henze's "Ondine." The color is dazzling and so are the music and choreography. That's Fonteyn and Michael Soames doing a thingamajig in "Ondine" on the front cover.

Pope

Incidentally, the "Firebird" section of the film was shot during an all-night session after a normal evening theater performance at London's Covent Garden. By the time the movie was finished, Dame Margot had worn out six pairs of ballet shoes.

THE ACADEMY Theater has completed booking arrangements of its third art film series. The season starts Jan. 21; the series has been expanded to a total of 12 films in five separate evenings, and the total subscription price is five bucks.

Here are the titles to be shown, and if they don't ring a bell, you ain't got no culture: "Neighbors," "Appalachian Spring" (Martha Graham), "Burlesque on Carmen" (Charlie Chaplin), "Rashomon," "Third Avenue El," "Volpone," "In the Park" (Marcel Marceau), "The Quiet One," "A Short Vision," "Fatal Glass of Beer" (W. C. Fields), "Brink of Life" (Ingmar Bergman) and "A Visit to Picasso."

OF ALL the watchdogs of Hollywood's screen morals, none is fiercer in censure or of a more vigilant eye than the Roman Catholic Church's Legion of Decency.

Recently, in its report to the American Catholic hierarchy the league has blasted what it calls "an alarming increase of moral objectionability in American motion picture exhibition during the past year."

From the league's point of view, "objectionable films made in the domestic market have risen from 14.59 per cent of 1959's total Hollywood production to 24.33 per cent in the year 1960.

"Happy Anniversary makes a sordid joke of premarital relationship through the eyes and ears of children. 'From the Terrace' not only accepts divorce and remarriage but in its development is one long emotional argument for and rationalization of the same.

"The Christian religion is seriously compromised by the sensationalism of 'Elmer Gantry.' Pornographic sadism characterizes 'Psycho.' Perversion enters into the thematic development of 'Suddenly, Last Summer' and 'Desire in the Dust.'"

ELWOOD P. DOWD (ART CARNEY) AND FRIEND HARVEY ON TV

The Pooka Returns to Television

The biggest comedy star ever NOT to be seen on television will play the title role opposite Art Carney, Marion Lorne, Loring Smith, Larry Blyden, Charlotte Rae, Elizabeth Montgomery and a number of other talents, Tuesday on Show of the Month (Ch. 5, 8:30 p.m.)

The comedy, which opened Nov. 1, 1944, on Broadway, won the Pulitzer Prize in 1945 and was performed a total of 2,775 times before closing on Jan. 15, 1949.

On the stage, Frank Fay starred as Elwood P. Dowd, the man with an imaginary 6-ft. 1½-in. rabbit companion, and the late Josephine Hull played Dowd's long-suffering sister, Veta Louise Simmons. James Stewart portrayed Dowd in the movie version, in which Mrs. Hull recreated her original role.

"Harvey," according to Burns Mantle, the theatrical historian, "represented a triumph of persistence" for Brock Pemberton, the play's producer. Pemberton, Mantle wrote, undertook to sponsor the play despite the advice of his best friends, who did not like it.

Rawhide (Ch. 5, 7 p.m.) — A man has his mother kidnapped to keep from returning home to run his father's barbershop.

Harrigan & Son (Ch. 11, 8 p.m.) — When Junior decides to make an out-of-court settlement, his dad suggests that a trial might be better strategy.

Route 66 (Ch. 5, 8:30 p.m.) — Tod and Buz are almost lynched when they run afoul of a small-town tyrant.

Worth Knowing

After our friend told us those interesting things about the lobster we wanted to learn more about this curious creature, but found that very little has been written about it, so we gathered additional facts from various sources.

Apparently lobsters have been eaten by man wherever they are found, going all the way back to ancient times. It must have been a pretty hungry fellow who ate the first one, if he had to judge it just by appearances.

The yardstick to their age is their weight. It takes about 6 years for them to grow to a one pound weight, and then an additional 5 years for each additional pound. In their beginning it takes 18 days from roe to 1-inch-long baby lobster. Lobsters have been caught which have indicated 100 years of age, but this is rare for they are usually caught in their span between 1 and 3 pounds, or six and fifteen years. A small percentage will be in the larger brackets, up to about 80 years of age, and the meat of these old fellows is every bit as good as the younger ones. They can gain weight only by shedding their outer shell, which they do periodically, by forming a soft shell under the hard one and then pushing off the old one over their eyes. It takes two weeks for the soft shell to harden, during which time they may be eaten by other fish or lobsters, so they hide under rocks until the larger shell has hardened. There is a nerve under the shell at the top of the head, which if rubbed for a minute will put him to sleep in any position, even standing on his head. In operating an automobile agency for the greatest benefit of our customers, it is in knowing and using the lesser known facts and service as well as the usual things that adds up to such complete satisfaction for you, and means so much when you buy a car from us.

Old Stepin Fetchit Dishes Up The Newest Humor in Town

By BILL MYRICK

Believe it or not, the freshest humor in this town this week is being served up by one of the nation's oldest humorists in America. He appeared in his first movie in 1923 and he's performing nightly at the Bayou in the Colonial Terrace Hotel.

He says his name is—after four Presidents—Lincoln Theodore Monroe Andrew Perry, handed down in Key West, Fla., in 1893. But he's known as Stepin Fetchit, veteran of countless motion pictures.

He allows that one day a few years back he was pulling a fast trot on the old Fox lot being shot in scenes for three movies at one time. Stars of these shows included Will Rogers, Warner Baxter, Shirley Temple and Janet Gaynor.

But Atlanta night-spotters want to know more about the man today. Well, it's unadorned (natchul) humor at its best. "Step" vows that he writes his own lines, which include allusions to space men visiting the Congo, a prize-fightin' bulldog, and humorous, inoffensive commentaries on Dixie's major controversies.

His "Letters From My Kin-folks" have a folksy ring that Charlie Weaver hasn't quite mastered yet.

The other night "Step" had a touch of laryngitis, which may or may not have improved the act.

Rounding out the Bayou show are singing emcee Ivan Bloch and Ralph Mayes' Peachtree Strutters (Dixieland).

OPENING at the Paradise Room is a group with more female figgers than you usually find in the Henry Grady spotlight. The (three) Grace Notes look right pretty, and the publicists say they sing and dance, and have been televised by Garroway and Sullivan.

On the same bill is comic Johnny Morgan, but he ain't as pretty as the gals are; and the Don Grimes band with the biggest piano in town.

NEW SHOW at Club Peachtree stars Johnny Glade, the "golden-voiced tenor"; Jackie Lee, exotic; Jo Ann Sherwood, acrobatic dancer with magic.

COLE AND BLONDELL pull off some unusual antics in the intimate Monte Carlo Lounge at the Riviera.

ANOTHER intimate lounge with a cosmopolitan tempo—the King's Inn at the Atlanta Cabana—features Jackie Raye and Marty Scherr, the King's Strings and a curvaceous soda dispenser who whistles into the mike.

AND IF YOU want to hear the swingingest two-man band in America stop by The Party and hear Bill and Melvin. They'll go from "Chattanooga Shoe Shine" and "Choo-Choo" to "Georgia On My Mind" and "Stars Fell on Alabama" and anything else you can name, in nothing flat.

RECORDS

Spike Jones, Arturo Toscanini Included on Music Panorama

SIXTY YEARS OF MUSIC America Loves Best (Vol.
II): 30 selections on two LPs.
RCA Victor.

A year or so ago when Volume I was released, it proved a smash hit. Great music at an attractive price. The same can be said of its sequel. It seems everything is included from Spike Jones' Cocktails for Two to Toscanini and the NBC Orchestra playing the Act I Prelude from Traviata.

Take a look at the classical choices: Rigoletto Quartet (Caruso, tenor), Rise Stevens singing the Habanera from Carmen and Leonard Warren the Toreador Song, Kreisler playing Meditation from Thais, and Lanza's powerful Vesti la Giubba.

And what about these for pop classics? Glahe's Beer Barrel Polka, Chevalier's Louise, Vaughn Monroe's Riders in the Sky, Glenn Miller's In the Mood, David Rose's Holiday for Strings, Robert Merrill's Whiffenpoof Song, Tommy Dorsey's Boogie-Woogie, and the Boston Pops' Sabre Dance.

One thing is puzzling: Why was Eddie Fisher's Oh! My Pa-Pa included? As a humanitarian gesture, this master long ago should have been placed in the middle of an atomic explosion. The only possible explanation is that everybody from office boy to Gen. Sarnoff has a terrific crush on Elizabeth Taylor.

—T. M.
RESPIGHI: Pines of Rome; Fountains of Rome. Chicago Symphony Orchestra conducted by Fritz Reiner. RCA Victor.

Toscanini gave this label the top monaural version of these two colorful works and now Reiner gives it the top stereo reading. It's almost as if Respighi composed with stereo in mind. The sound is absolutely gorgeous and undoubtedly will draw "ohs" and "ahs" from hi-fi fans.

—T. M.
SPARTACUS: Sound Track. Dec-

ca.
Alex North's score for the epic film about the Greek gladiator-slave who led a revolt against the Romans may be the best of the many movie sound track albums issued this past year. Certainly RCA's "Exodus" is the only score to challenge "Spartacus."

Spartacus' love theme is a lyric, lovely one, likely to make the best-seller lists. The battle music and the arena themes are dramatic and hair-raising, and North adds to the orchestra the sound of the electronic ondioline for extra excitement. With the film opening at the Roxy Dec. 22—and with many of us getting new hi-fi sets for Christmas—this record couldn't have been issued at a better time. It's a natural for showing off what your new hi-fi can do.

Brigitte Bardot Life Story Should Really Be a Sizzler

By SHEILAH GRAHAM

HOLLYWOOD—Brigitte Bardot's "Life and Loves," by her secretary, Alain Carre, uncensored and wild, will soon be published in this country and should cause as much commotion as the current unauthorized Marilyn Monroe biog.

You can see Bob Hope and Lucille Ball as youngsters in "Sorrowful Jones." Where? On the late show, of course. And compare them in their latest film, "The Facts of Life." They have both "worn" very well.

Glenn Ford Vivien Leigh

... Harvard Lampoon ex-editor Rory Harry makes his film debut in "Where the Boys Are." He's tall, good-looking, contributes to Playboy magazine, and is a friend of fast-rising star George Hamilton.

David Susskind will put his "Life of Evita Peron" on TV, with Vivien Leigh playing little Evt, he hopes. . . . Deborah Kerr reduced the price of her Pacific Palisades mansion to $200,000, to help pay for her lovely villa in Klosters, Switzerland.

Glenn Ford won't waste much time when he completes "Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse" at Metro, to march down the aisle with Hope Lange. . . . Frank Sinatra is polishing his wife, tie and tails for the Inauguration Ball. Ditto Jeff Chandler and Peter Lawford of course.

Millionaire Donald Crisp celebrated his 55th year as an actor with the role of the caretaker in his recent picture for Walt Disney, "Greyfriars Bobby." Hard to believe that Donald started his screen career as a villain.

Understatement from Ann Blyth, who expects her fourth child this month: "We want and pray for a large family." Husband Dr. James McNulty, brother of Dennis, is an obstetrician.

Dennis Morgan — Remember

Brigitte Bardot Marilyn Monroe

him in those two-guy comedies with Jack Carson?—is trying to raise the finance for a movie on the life of Scots poet Robert

Burns. Dennis, who has been making personal appearances in recent months, is a millionaire from his old but long, contract at Warners. Among other good investments, Dennis owns an electronics plant.

Steve Allen and Jayne Meadows reduced the overhead by having their office at home in a separate wing of their house in the valley. Jayne has been working on an original movie story to co-star them again. You saw them, perhaps, in "College Confidential."

'TANNHAUSER' ON RADIO Marjorie Lawrence on Met Program

Marjorie Lawrence, former Metropolitan Opera soprano whose career was brutally interrupted by polio, will return to the opera house Saturday — but only to speak.

Miss Lawrence will appear as intermission guest with Boris Goldovsky between the acts of Richard Wagner's "Tannhauser," to be broadcast from the Met at 2 p.m., on WGST.

A few years ago, the soprano returned to the Met stage to sing the role of Venus in the Marjorie Lawrence same opera. Unable to move about, she sang the entire role from a reclining position, her voice unimpaired. Her comeback was cheered by the critics, but the experiment was not repeated.

In Saturday's performance, soprano Leonie Rysanek will sing the role of Elisabeth, tenor Hans Hopf will be heard in the title role of Tannhauser, and mezzo-soprano Irene Dalis will sing Venus. Basso Jerome Hines will perform the role of Landgraf Hermann and baritone Hermann Prey will sing Wolfram.

Georg Solti, Hungarian-born conductor of opera and symphony throughout Europe, will conduct his first opera for the Metropolitan Opera audiences at the "Tannhauser" broadcast. Solti, conductor of the Los Angeles Symphony, has conducted the Vienna State Opera, the Vienna, Berlin and London philharmonic orchestras, the Festivals at Salzburg, Glyndebourne, Edinburgh and Besancon. Last July Solti conducted the new production of "Tannhauser" at the Munich Festival.
